LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Clerics and Politics:
The Clergy Defended

To the Editor of the
"NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS"

SIR,—I cannot but feel that your two articles headed "Clerics and Politics" are scarcely fair to those of your readers who, as yet, have only been able to read the very abbreviated version of, presumably, a letter written to the press at home by "British clerics under the leadership of the Archbishop of York."

You have not told us who these "British clerics" are, but most certainly they are not to be described, as you have described them in your former leaderette as "the clergy of the Church of England." A handful of clergy, however prominent, is not identical with "the clergy," a phrase erroneously used by you. Moreover, as one who has spent much time on textual criticism, I must point out that truncated sentences are unsuitable for criticism. Twice you quote as follows:—

> "We are anxious lest the recent trend of events....results from sheer expediency as the guide to our action."

As it stands, this is simply not even English; nor is it intelligible; is "results" in the original a noun or a verb?

You say:

> "There is a general impression that the Established Church is much too vocal in matters which do not concern it...."

I do not know precisely where that "general impression" exists, but I do venture to say that on matters of national morality the Established Church has very definitely both a right and a duty—to uphold Christian principles, "especially" (to quote from your second leaderette) "at a time like this when high morality has given place to the most sordid of expedients." I notice, with very real regret, that you, sir, definitely prefer expediency to principles; but surely you cannot expect the Church to agree with you? If it did, it would be utterly disloyal to its Master, and deservedly would lose credit among its adherents.

On matters of principle, Dr. Temple (one of the greatest philosophers of the day) is surely qualified to write; but he and his friends surely did not say they were voicing the opinions of "the clergy of the Church of England"? He was writing on a subject of which he is an undoubted authority; if he was so bold as to criticize the Government's foreign policy, what of it? Has not Mr. Eden done likewise? If Lord Nuffield, to whom you refer, also writes to the press on matters of principles and policy, is he to be told to "stick to his last"? Why may not a clergyman criticize his Government as much as any other citizen? Or may only an Editor venture to do this?

You do not realize that in these days of "the most sordid of expedients" a great many people have asked what the Church has to say.

I have yet to meet the clergyman who considers he has a better right to "pass judgment on political matters" than anyone else; but he certainly does feel called upon to uphold the principles of Christian morality, even if it is not expedient to do so.

Your remarks about "slums on Church properties" merely shows that you do not in the least know what is the true situation; as to "the underpayment of clergy", that is scarcely a matter for the clergy to remedy, is it? Finally, may I say that your repeated disapproval of the clergy upholding, not the political views of any particular party, but the principles of Christian morality, is gravely upsetting to those of us who try, however humbly and feebly, "to show forth God's praise not only with our lips but in our lives"?

P. C. MATTHEWS.

Shanghai, July 11.

An Apology Expected

To the Editor of the
"NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS"

SIR,—With reference to your leaderette which appeared under a somewhat condescendingly ironical heading, "Clerics and Politics," allow me to offer a few comments on the above subject.

First of all, taking for granted your bold statement that "there seems to be a peculiar impression gaining ground amongst the clergy of the established Church that the taking of holy orders confers upon them some authoritative quality enabling them to pass judgment on political matters....." may I ask you in my turn if your profession confers upon you some authoritative quality enabling you to pass judgment on a venerable and highly respected church dignitary with a world-wide reputation?

Further, if you go as far as to deny the clergy a perfectly understandable and human right of judging political matters on the ground that "the Established Church is much too vocal in matters which do not concern it," I would venture to suggest that, according to this principle, we may just as well deny the same right to physicians, engineers, chemists, business men, and all others who are not immediately concerned with political matters. Believe me, in such case the number of those who may lawfully criticize the policy of State, without inflicting upon themselves your severe criticism, will be pitifully small.

I would also beg to remind you that when clergy of certain denominations "pass judgment on political matters," and confer their blessings upon proud conquerors, you never seem to notice it, and certainly never reprimand them on such occasions. Why is this discrimination? Is it just because you are reluctant to launch an attack against the church whose members are very ardent and active Christians, and you know that your criticism, whether justified or not, will be promptly met with a very strong protest? But, knowing very well that Protestants are rather passive and too liberal, you do not hesitate to launch an attack against our clergy.

It seems you are very much prejudiced against Protestant churches in general, and this is rather surprising and hardly in line with the idealistic motto of your paper. I beg to remind you that on two occasions you refused to insert my letters in your column, although I never attempted in them "to pass judgment on political matters," but merely dealt with religious controversies. I fully admit that my letters rather strongly criticized the clergy of certain Christian denominations, and, when my letters did not appear in print, I decided that you did not wish to offend the churches in question. You can well imagine my surprise and, frankly speaking, indignation, when you yourself launch such a deliberate and malicious attack against higher Protestant clergy. It seems that you have no consideration whatever for the feelings of the majority of your readers. Even if you are opposed to the Church of England yourself, may I venture to suggest that your position as an Editor of an impartial newspaper imposes upon you some duty to your readers, and you should not give way to your personal sentiments.

I do not belong to Anglican Communion but our Church has much in common with the Church of England, and I wish to convey to you that all my parishioners and I personally strongly resent your severe and unjustified criticism of English clergy, the least we expect of you now is a prompt apology.

A. LEONIDOV.
Minister
Russian Protestant Church.

Shanghai, July 11.

Perusal of this letter should be sufficient to indicate why previous lucubrations from the Rev. A. Leonidov's pen were not printed in these columns. Bereft of its vehemence and the accusation against the editor of this journal of moral cowardice, Mr. Leonidov's letter may be taken as stating that he disapproves of the criticism of high dignitaries of the Church of England. That should make everything quite plain.—Ed.

War or Peace:
Appeal to Japanese

To the Editor of the
"NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS"

SIR,—When I write: "Let all true human beings fight together in a war against the common enemy of humanity, oppression and injustice," I do not implicitly mean a war of armed forces, with human beings cutting the throats of other human beings. I have rather in mind a war of moral force, of inflexible upholding of truth and relentless denunciation of all shallow doctrines and false principles. The pen will be the most potent weapon for engaging in such a war. Let the public opinion be stirred up to see the folly of the narrow-minded nationalism. Let the people of each country overthrow their unworthy public servants who have the audacity of imposing upon them senseless death and destruction. Let the Japanese and Chinese peoples unite in demanding that the Japanese armies withdraw from China. The terrible orgy of bombing and slaughter: all for what? The Chinese soldiers are defending their fatherland; they are doing a most regretful thing, but they are duty bound to do it. But why and for what should the Japanese soldiers fight? It is absurd to claim that, with all their bombing and killing and burning and rape, they are befriending the Chinese people and seeking to liberate them from the tyranny of Chiang Kai-shek. The Chiang Kai-shek government has its faults and at one time gross and unpardonable faults. But Chiang is now the accepted leader of all the Chinese people; all his former enemies are now eager to serve and die fighting under him. The Japanese invasion has achieved one thing; China, chaotic and disorderly but yesterday, is now united as she has never been for many years. The puppets at Peiping and Nanking and Shanghai: what of them? However much the Japanese militarists try to make of them, they are mere puppets and nonentities in the eyes of the Chinese people.

Do the Japanese people really seek to conquer and enslave and annihilate the Chinese people, 400 million of them? Even if you could succeed with your very superior military force, what good would it bring to you? Would it be worth while in such a cause to sacrifice your fathers, husbands, brothers and sons with all their future and promise? Your leaders have commanded and you have no alternative but to obey. Patriotism demands that you sacrifice everything for your country. Alas, this doctrine of false patriotism! How many crimes in the world are committed in thy name! Let me tell you, my dear Japanese brothers and friends, when the leaders of your country have committed themselves to a wrong and suicidal policy, it is not patriotism to follow that policy blindly. Your country belongs as much to you as to your so-called leaders. If you know the policy to be wrong, do your utmost to rectify it. Exercise your right as citizens of your country; change those leaders who betray you; beware of staking your beloved country as a pawn in the reckless game of military chance; think not of the empty glory of foreign conquest but of your own real good. If you do like this, you will be the true patriots of your country. To follow blindly your so-called leaders' misguided policies makes you a mere tool and nothing else!

I am quite sure the Japanese people and the Chinese people agree in this fundamental principle; that our two countries should be friends to each other. We are of the same race and culture and we are such near neighbours that it is impossible for us to quarrel for any length of time. We must trade and co-operate with each other for mutual benefit. Neither of us has been blameless in the past. We have been fellow-victims to suicidal policies dictated by our militarists. Is it not time for us to shake hands and to ask each other's forgiveness? The Japanese invasion has taught a terrible lesson to China. We blame ourselves more than the Japanese people, for it is our own chaos and disunity which invites the foreign aggression. The Japanese invasion has inflicted terrible destruction in China; we weep over our dead brethren in awe and sorrow; but we do not ask for dire revenge. Hate against hate leads us to nowhere; love alone will bring comfort and happiness to all of us.

Our only request is that the Japanese people recall all their soldiers from China and instead of war and hatred, there will be peace and love between our two countries. Will the Japanese people tolerate the invasion of their country by foreign troops? The Chinese people too will not tolerate foreign invasion. So long as there is a single Japanese soldier in the Chinese territory, there can be no peace between us. I firmly believe China and Japan are inseparately tied in weal or woe. What harms either country must also harm the other; what is good to one country cannot but do good to the other also. Why then should we quarrel and fight? Let us stand together and demand that the Japanese armies be recalled from China. Then there will be peace and love and everlasting happiness to all of us.

Meaning of Comparison

To the Editor of the
"NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS"

SIR,—I venture to think that the general principles which determine all construction are applicable to the present controversy. Construction, I take it, does not come in unless it is made necessary by obscurity or uncertainty. But as J. C. de B. suggests that comparisons were absent from his first letter, then, in view of the reference which it contains to a combination of statesmen whom he describes as "young diplomats" one may be inclined to doubt whether the meaning of the word is correctly apprehended by J. C. de B. The word "comparison" in the sense in which it appears to be employed by ALERTA seems to me quite appropriate.

As experts are not likely to be called to determine whether J. C. de B.'s grouping together of three statesmen under the heading of "young diplomats" amounts to a comparison, may I submit for the consideration of all those interested in English composition the following definitions:

> Compare: To liken one person to another; to see how two persons or things resemble each other; to show how two or more persons are related to each other; to place two or more persons on an equal footing.
> Comparison: The act of comparing; capacity of being compared; grouping of two or more persons similarly qualified.
> Compared: Represented as similar.

The word "comparison" being one of those words which classic usage and modern analysis have combined to stamp with a fixed value, it is not what any writer (including of course myself) may suggest as to its variations that will determine its true meaning but what English lexicographers have already established. In the light of what may be found in both ancient and modern dictionaries, J. C. de B.'s description of the three statesmen as "young diplomats" appears a very pointed comparison indeed. Whether the comparison is justified or not is another matter and must depend on the age and experience of the diplomatists referred to.

A Tribute:
The Late Mr. R. W. Swallow

To the Editor of the
"NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS"

SIR,—As one who perhaps has enjoyed the friendship of Mr. R. W. Swallow for a longer time than any other person in China, may I be allowed to add a few words to the obituary notice which appeared in the "N.C.D.N." this morning.

Mr. Swallow—or "Rob" as we affectionately called him—was the son of the Rev. Dr. Swallow, one of the founders of the United Methodist Free Church, which by later unions became the Methodist Church, in Ningpo. Dr. Swallow sent his children to England to be educated and in 1895 took a house in Manchester where he lived for a year and Mrs. Swallow for a longer period. As my father—the Rev. W. Redfern, also a minister of the United Methodist Free Church—was a close friend of Dr. Swallows, and we were living in the neighbourhood, a kind of family friendship grew up between our family and his. The boys—Rob, Norman and Luther—studied at Ashville College, Harrogate, whilst the girl, Alice, next to Rob in years, was at Sevenoaks. Later on Roy took his B.Sc. degree at Owen's College, now known as Manchester University. In 1904, as your notice states, he came out to China to join the Shanse University. This was a Boxer Memorial Institution which had recently been founded under the principalship of Mr. Moir Duncan.

In his school and college days Rob was a well-known football player. He was a particularly rapid "dribbler" and was one of the Owen's College "forwards." Being a few years younger than I he was one of my boyhood heroes. The writer on his arrival in Ningpo in 1903 first lived with Dr. Swallow, and though since then our ways have diverged Rob and the writer have always kept in touch with each other.

His outstanding characteristics was, I think, his good-nature. He lived a quiet life but to those who were privileged to enjoy his friendship, life will be poorer through his passing.

Illegal Arms:
A Chinese Suggestion

To the Editor of the
"NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS"

SIR,—In your editorial of July 9, under the heading "Thursday's Good Work," you made the suggestion that, in order to protect the neutrality of the Settlement, persons found with military arms be handed over to the Japanese authorities. I presume, you referred specially to the Chinese, as the Japanese disturbers of peace to the Settlement have so far acted pretty much as they pleased. But persons found in illegal possession of arms may be in the employ of Japanese terrorists (the bombings directed against the Chinese newspapers are still fresh in our memory); to hand them over to the Japanese would only encourage further acts of terrorism and would certainly be farthest from your intention.

Since "it is no part of the duty of the authorities to discover what the possessors (of arms) may have in their mind," may I suggest that half of those caught with arms be turned over to the Japanese military authorities and the other half to the Chinese military authorities, on the even chance that they received their just deserts. Such a procedure would be more in the keeping with the neutral status of the Settlement which you are so anxious to preserve.

NEUTRALITY.

Terrorism and Its Cure

To the Editor of the
"NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS"

SIR,—Your suggestion that all who have arms without permit should be handed over to the Japanese is certainly an A. 1 remedy and it is only hoped that this standard cure should be put in practice at once. May I be allowed to make some more suggestions in the matter:

(1) When the search parties do their important work, why allow the foreigners and women to pass free?
(2) The question: Who gave and/or sold the gun or bomb to the killer? should never be forgotten. We get very seldom any light on this point.
(3) Is it true that Shanghai still has a special police? There are many of us who are convinced that great influences and plenty of money is distributed here to make trouble in the foreign areas in order that Japan may also become involved with some foreign powers. It is a matter of life or death for the foreign Shanghai to get to bottom with these terrorist activities and therefore we ask again: What is Shanghai special police doing these days?
(4) To avoid misunderstanding it is herewith suggested that S.M.C. should request both the Generalissimo and the Japanese commander to state in writing their opinion about the terroristic acts as committed here.
(5) S.M.C. ought to do some verbal propaganda with regard to the matter, just as it used to be done to enlighten the public on traffic dangers. To ensure strict neutrality in the matter, it is suggested that mostly foreign speakers should be employed for this work. We regret that these dastards, who against some premium throw their missiles at random, killing anybody in the vicinity and then disappear in the crowd, still receive some praise in some quarters.
(6) Oriental justice differs from ours. The effect of mutual responsibility must not be forgotten. Hotel managements and house owners etc., who give shelter to the terrorists ought to pay for these crimes together with the bandits themselves.

Sixty Years Ago

FROM THE "NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS," OF JULY 13, 1878

Shortly after 11 a.m. on Saturday, the ss. Dago, which took in tea at Hankow and Kiukiang and finished loading in Shanghai, left her moorings, off the French Bund, to proceed to sea. At the same time several junks were coming up the river with a fair wind, and two of them, when a little above the Police Hulk, tacked to the Pootung side, and as they were crossing the channel the Dago was in close proximity with them. There was a collision, and one of the junks sank in less than ten minutes. How the collision occurred, or whether it was between two junks themselves, or whether the Dago ran into and sank the junk, we do not presume to say in midst of the diversity of opinion on the point. A number of small boats collected, and the crew of the sunken junk was saved. Some doubt was expressed in regard to one man who, it was said, attempted to save the junk's papers and went down in her.

A Young British Shipowner

Mr. J. A. Billmeir Behind Substantial Proportion of Shipping to Spain

The most intriguing figure in the City of London today is a young British Shipowner—Mr. Jack Albert Billmeir, says the "Sunday Express."

Wherever the bombing of British ships is discussed--in the City, in Whitehall, in Parliament, and even in the far-off ports of Spain—the name of Mr. Billmeir comes into the discussion.

For Mr. Billmeir is the man behind quite a substantial proportion of the British cargo fleet that has been carrying food, coal and medical supplies to Government Spain.

Many of the ships which have caused such grave complications are his company's ships. He has become such a power in the Spanish trade that he is occasionally called jocularly "The King of Spain."

Held Minor Position

Very little is known about Mr. Billmeir. He is aloof and shy. He dislikes publicity for his enterprises. He abhors and avoids interviews.

A few years ago he held a minor two or three hundred pounds a year job in a City office. Today he is a very wealthy man.

His meteoric rise to fortune began three years ago when he was a director, with his wife, of the Stanhope Steamship Company, Ltd., owning two cargo ships.

Since the outbreak of the Spanish war his company has bought up all the ships it could, till it controlled a fleet of 23 cargo ships.

Recently his company has sold one or two of them at a good figure. The fleet is managed from the splendid offices of Messrs. J. A. Billmeir and Co., in Holland House, Bury-street E.C.3.

He is a slender, youngish man, dark, dresses well, and wears horn-rimmed spectacles. All day he sits in his office busily moving his ships here and there on their dangerous journeys. At night he goes home to an unpretentious red-brick Victorian villa named Lamorna in Stanhope-road. Hornsey—a very modest residence for a wealthy man.

His neighbours in fact do not realize that he has become so wealthy. His only sign of comfortable affluence is a nice sports car and a beautiful Samoyed dog.

Very frequently Mr. Billmeir dashes across to the Continent on business. A reporter who called at his office seeking an interview was met by a dark, swarthy young assistant as courtly as a Spanish grandee.

Magnate Still Young

The assistant said: "It is impossible for Mr. Billmeir to talk on the matter. We don't wish to appear in the Press. It is extremely bad for business."

His wife, not yet middle-aged, said recently when discussing the wealth that has come to them: "Thank goodness we're still young."

Almost every one of Mr. Billmeir's company's ships has a name beginning with "Stan," after the placid Hornsey road in which he lives.

There are, for example, Stanwell, Stancroft, Stanland, Stanwold—captured by Franco but released on the demand of the British Government—Stanmore, Stanbridge and Stanwood. Mr. Billmeir's company's ships do not, of course, carry war material to Spain, only food, coal, and medical supplies.

They collect freights which have been dumped at neutral ports by other ships unwilling to run the risk of the last journey to Spain and take them into the danger zone.

In City circles it is said that the Billmeir Company has been offered as high a figure as £100,000 to stop sending their ship to Spanish Government ports, but Mr. Billmeir keeps that secret to himself.

Yellow River Floods, Narcotics in North And Bombings Subject of Comment

By O. M. Green

(Editor, "North-China Daily News" 1911-1930)

London, June 17.

The Yellow River floods have stirred public imagination deeply. With copious, graphic reports from China, most papers have published special articles on the story of "China's Sorrow." Five thousand years ago or thereabouts, the Emperor Yao rewarded the Ploughman Shun with his two daughters in marriage and the succession to the throne after him for his working in taming the Yellow River.

Two or three years ago two young Chinese engineering students at Liverpool University were constructing a model system of locks, sluices and siphons by which they hoped to solve the problem of the river. I don't know whether they ever actually tested their ideas. But clearly the river is not tamed yet.

Joint Action by Powers

The "Daily Telegraph" today quotes from the "U.S. Naval Institute Proceedings"—which may be described as the semi-official journal of the American Navy—a striking article by Capt. Dudley W. Knox, arguing that events in the Far East will ultimately oblige Great Britain, the United States and France to take joint naval action to compel Japan to withdraw from China.

Captain Knox argues that Japan's aim is to get absolute control of all China's vast resources in raw materials for further attacks on world trade, and that force is the only argument she respects—both self-evident premises. Should she succeed Captain Knox holds that the west would have to take action to prevent its standard of living being lowered by Japanese underselling.

"Being insular, Japan can support her military effort on the (Asiatic) continent only by means of sea communications," Capt. Knox continues. "An overwhelming allied fleet would therefore threaten the destruction of not only Japan's navy, but her army as well, by cutting its communications completely and leaving it to the mercy of the Chinese.

"The latter would certainly win decisively in time if supplied by the allies, even though Russia failed to send a large army to the Far East."

Captain Knox is not only the leading naval critic in America but was once one of the strongest of the isolationists.

To the above it may be added that more and more people in this country are coming to the view that the war is leading to a complete deadlock which will compel Western Powers to intervene in order to save the Far East from reducing itself to beggary.

Japanese Drug-Pedlars Indicted

Mr. Amau did not find his colleagues on the narcotic drugs committee at Geneva so easy to deal with as the foreign correspondents in Tokyo when he was the foreign office spokesman. On June 13 the committee heard a terrible indictment of the flooding of China with opium, heroin and morphia under Japanese military protection. The most striking part of the discussion was that Mr. Fuller, the American representative, said that, whereas he had previously been somewhat doubtful of the Chinese reports, he now accepted them entirely, and he supplied several facts and figures in proof. He was supported by the representatives of Great Britain, India, Canada and Egypt—the last named being Russell Pasha, the world's greatest expert on the drug traffic.

Next day Mr. Amau replied, with general denials but no details. The Belgian delegate immediately denounced the reply as disappointing. It was not enough to say that the Japanese military had not encouraged the drug traffic in China when all the evidence went the other way. Vague denials were not enough in answer to the specific charges that had been made.

It is not only China which is affected. Mr. Fuller showed that in a period of fifteen months 650 kilos. of heroin, or about two-thirds of the world's legitimate requirements for one year, had been exported to the United States from the Japanese Concession in Tientsin.

L.M.S. China War Losses

At a meeting this week of the London Missionary Society's board of Directors it was announced that an anonymous donor had given £3,000 as the nucleus of a fund to restore the Society's work in China at the end of the war.

It was also stated that the property losses of the L.M.S. at Shanghai alone owing to the war amounted to £20,000, and the personal losses of its missionaries in clothes and furniture to £2,500.

One excellent announcement was that the whole of the accumulated deficit with which the year had begun, a total of £76,000, had been wiped off. One anonymous donor gave £10,000, and contributions came in from every field in which the L.M.S. works, China, Africa, India, the South Seas, Madagascar and Papua, and from the Australian and New Zealand branches.

Mrs. Macleod's four pictures at the exhibition of the United Society of Artists, opened the day before yesterday, included, rather unusually for her, a landscape, or rather an old house and garden. She used to paint such subjects in China but in London I think has more devoted herself to portraits.

It is the house of Mrs. Henderson, wife of Admiral Henderson, daughter of the late Mrs. Roderick Campbell of Shanghai and cousin of Mr. Harry and Mr. Gordon Morriss. Some years ago Mrs. Henderson bought a jumble of old cottages and barns in Sussex and wove them cleverly together into a charming old house built on two sides of a square. The picture, painted at the time when the house was fronted by masses of wallflowers, is a gorgeous piece of colouring such as Mrs. Macleod delights in, very English and incomparable.

Of the portraits, the pastel of Cara, daughter of Maj. Oscar Quest, aged about eleven, is reckoned by critics one of the best Mrs. Macleod has ever done. The child is dressed in an embroidered Persian coat and red pointed cap, an old family possession, a brilliant piece of colouring. But it is the skill with which Mrs. Macleod has caught her character which makes the portrait stand out so strikingly. Cara is a descendant of Sarah, Duchess of Marlborough, Queen Anne's friend, and looks as if she may have inherited a streak of her strong temperament.

Character Study

Another attractive character study to three years old Wallace, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frere-Reeves, and grand-daughter of the one and only Edgar Wallace. A pretty child, but specially attractive because it is not painted with the conventional Greuze-crim-Reynolds cherubic smile of childhood, but shows a rather grave little face with a strong mouth and remarkably good forehead. Here is another of the young generation whose future should be interesting.

The last of Mrs. Macleod's portraits is one of her sister Mrs. Gregory, who lived for several years in Japan, a humorous sympathetic face, crowned by masses of beautiful white hair which has not been cut short but is piled up in the graceful style of the years that are gone. All Mrs. Macleod's pictures this year are of her best, showing that insight and sureness of touch which have been so strong and increasing a feature of her work in the past ten years.

The exhibition contains a great deal of attractive painting. I have been attending the shows of the United Society of artists regularly for eight years, and the all round rise in the standard of the pictures is most marked.

Sir Hughe in Foreign Office

Sir Hughe Knatchbull-Hugessen has gone back into harness though not as an Ambassador, since at the moment there is no post open for him abroad, but as head of a department in the Foreign Office which is in charge of special international questions of trade and commerce. With Sir Alexander Cadogan as Permanent Under Secretary of State, the F. O. is thus in the unusual position of having two ex-ambassadors on its staff in Whitehall. And with Mr. R. G. Howe at the head of the Far Eastern Department, where he is working long hours, China may be said to be well represented in Downing Street.

Anti-Bombing Campaign

The China Campaign Committee winds up a week of special protest against the bombing of Canton—which included two parades with banners through the West End, a deputation to the Japanese Ambassador, a meeting at Queen's hall and after it another march to the Japanese Ambassador's house—with a mass meeting in Trafalgar Square the day after tomorrow.

The Committee is distinctly a left-wing organization, but its influence is not thereby to be discounted. The Peace Ballot of two years ago was a left-wing move, but there is no question but that it impressed the Government. Feeling in England on the bombings is undoubtedly strong and Japan should not leave it out of her calculations for the future. From the news of the past few days (let us touch wood) it looks rather as if the protests in Tokyo had had some effect in mitigating the bombing of Canton, whatever the official reply may have been.

Police Against Demonstrations

In connection with these public demonstrations Sir Philip Game, Metropolitan Police Commissioner, in his annual report just published, urges strongly that such displays should be forbidden altogether, as they give the police unnecessary trouble and draw off numbers of men from urgent duties elsewhere. The China Campaign Committee's withers are unwrung; their marches have been perfectly orderly.

The Fascists' and Communists' demonstrations, always ending in vicious fights, are an unmitigated nuisance which most people would gladly see suppressed. But what about our treasured principle of personal liberty and freedom of speech?

One regrets to see from Sir Philip Game's report that London's crimes increased by 8,000 last year compared with 1936. For some of this the Commissioner holds the careless householder to blame.

"As has been often said he writes, opportunity produces crime. Houses and flats with doors that can be pushed open or left with windows unfastened or easily unfastenable, unlocked cars with suitcases and rugs in them, unchained bicycles leaning against the wall, all these make things easy for the criminal.

"There seems to be some justification for the conclusion that the acquisitive instinct is becoming stronger than the urge to honesty. Statistics of juvenile crime appear to support this conclusion, as the percentage of arrests of persons up to 20 years of age shows a progressive increase."

A lot might be written on that phrase "the acquisitive instinct as a reflection of the social habits and imperious demand for money in all classes in this age.

Shot Down by Own Gun

A 260-M.P.H. R.A.F. plane was shot down by its own machine gun recently and its only occupant, Sergeant Pilot Reginald Malcolm Marsh, killed.

Holidaymakers on the beach at Leysdown, Sheppey, watching the plane, a Gladiator fighter, at diving and gunnery practice, saw it go into a spin, crumple up and plunge into shallow water.

Marsh, pressing the gun trigger on his control stick as he dived at his target, must have felt his propeller "thrash," and his machine shudder as it jerked the engine from side to side. Something had gone wrong with the timing gear which enabled the bullets to pass between the whirling blades of his airscrew. They had been riddled with shot.

As the machine fell, one of its wings collapsed. Marsh leaped out with his parachute, dropping into the sea.

An R.A.F. patrol boat sped to the rescue. Marsh was hurried to hospital at Eastchurch, but died there. He had only just won his wings and been posted to Hornchurch.

Twins Born in 'Plane

A woman gave birth to stillborn twins recently in a Scottish Airways ambulance 'plane which was taking her from the Outer Hebrides island of South Uist to Glasgow to receive hospital treatment.

The woman, Mrs. McLean, of Eochar, South Uist, wife of an islander, was transferred to an ambulance at the aerodrome and taken to hospital, where her condition was said to be serious. The births took place at a height of 4,000 feet.

Strange Will Case In Probate Court

Strong Comments by Judge And Counsel; Women Under Influence of Chauffeur

Strong comments on the actions of a man as an elderly woman, said to be under his influence, was dying in a liner in the Red Sea, were made by judge and counsel during the hearing of a case in the Probate Court recently, says the "Herald."

The action related to the estate of Mrs. Edith Pullen, of The Mall, Southgate, Middlesex, who died on Jan. 2, 1937, aged 69.

Mr. W. N. Stable, K. C., stated that the plaintiffs were Barclays Bank and Mr. John Henry Arthur Pullen respectively, sole executor and residuary legatee of a will made by Mrs. Pullen on May 5, 1936.

The defendant, Mr. Thomas Franklin Vince, who was employed as chauffeur by Mr. and Mrs. Pullen, put in a defence, and, in substance, propounded a will dated Jan. 2, 1937, the day on which Mrs. Pullen died aboard ship.

Mr. Vince did not file an affidavit of documents, and by order of the court his defence and counter-claim were struck out.

Abhorrence of Sea

We say that the will of Jan. 2 was procured by the fraud and undue influence of Mr. Vince, added Mr. Stable. Mrs. Pullen was put aboard a ship going to Australia. One can think of nothing better calculated to shorten the life of this corpulent old woman, suffering from heart disease and with an abhorrence of the sea, than a voyage to Australia, fortified by copious administrations of whisky and spirits provided by Mr. Vince.

It appeared from an affidavit sworn by Mr. Vince that the will dated May 5, 1936, was destroyed by Mrs. Pullen in his presence a few days before she died.

Mr. Stable added that Mr. Vince described himself as a doctor, and from time to time, when he stayed at an hotel, he registered as "Thomas F. Vince, M.D."

Mrs. Pullen seems to have been quite overwhelmed by Mr. Vince, counsel said, and she treated him as an equal. I submit that it is plain that Mr. Vince made up his mind to get this old woman into his clutches, to pander to her vanity and her love of drink, and to override her will. I submit that this was a deliberately planned fraud, and that in the execution of it Mr. Vince came as near to committing constructive murder as it is possible for anyone to go without being tried for murder.

Giving evidence, Mr. Pullen stated that after Vince arrived as his chauffeur he noticed that his wife was taking more drink than was good for her.

Spirits in Tea-Spoon

Miss Rhoda Smith, stewardess in the steamship Oronsay, said that Mrs. Pullen was taken ill on Jan. 1 and died the next day. She was buried at sea near Aden. Mr. Vince was in Mrs. Pullen's cabin when she was ill, and he gave her spirits in a tea-spoon.

Giving judgment, Mr. Justice Bucknill said it was important to notice that the alleged will of Jan. 2, 1937, made in the Oronsay, was in the handwriting of Vince and left him £3,500. It did not leave one penny to the husband.

Mrs. Pullen's estate was worth about £12,000, and she derived it through the kindness of her husband. By the will of May 5, 1936, she left the bulk of her property to her husband, and went out of her way to pay a merited testimonial to him.

Referring to the evidence of the stewardess as Mrs. Pullen was dying, the judge said: Mrs. Pullen was being looked after by Vince and by a Mrs. Skinner, who was in reality the mistress of Vince and had been stolen from her husband by Vince.

Double Warning

It seems quite clear to me, after hearing all the evidence, he said, that Vince acquired a sinister, an evil influence over this poor old lady. In 1935 she had been warned by her doctor that her heart was diseased and that she must not take too much alcohol.

Two people had warned her against Vince, one friend having told her that he was a villain, and another that he was a liar, but she paid no attention. She treated Vince as a friend and turned completely away from her husband.

Under the influence of Vince she started on a voyage to Australia. I strongly suspect that Vince deliberately gave her too much to drink, knowing, with the medical knowledge which he apparently had, that it must be the worst possible thing for her, and knowing that the evil effects on a woman in her condition, sailing through the great heat of the Red Sea, might prove fatal.

I am satisfied beyond any doubt that Vince persuaded Mrs. Pullen, through his undue influence, to destroy the will of May 5, 1936, and that she was not in a fit state to know and appreciate what she was going or her duties towards her relatives, and that on her death-bed he extracted from her signature to the second document.

I pronounce for the will of May 5, 1936, as contained in the completed draft, and against the document of Jan. 2, 1937."

Nanking's Population

The Nanking administration records a population of 276,000, including Hsiakwan. This does not comprise the extensions outside the other gates, nor the more distant points formerly included in the Municipal Area to the grand tune of 1,000,000 people. But the present records are probably incomplete, at that.

A considerable fraction of the garden land is growing up to weeds, or is poorly handled compared with old times. Insecurity for women and for chattels is the chief obstacle to full resumption of residence and work in the garden areas. Fourteen public schools and many private (semi-domestic) ones are in operation, and parents are eager to have more and better ones. Yet a number of those now in operation report scanty and irregular attendance because so many children of primary-school age are forced on to the streets to sell cigarettes, matches and cheap candies.

Soviet Inquiry Into General's Affairs

Habarovsk Commission To Begin Sittings

Changchun, July 12.

A special inquiry commission headed by L. Z. Mekhlis, Assistant Commissar of Internal Affairs and Director of the political department of the Soviet Army, arrived at Habarovsk on July 9 to investigate the affairs of Gen. G. S. Lushkov, now a political "exile" in Tokyo, according to a report received here this afternoon.

Commissar Yezhov was originally chosen to head the commission, the report said, but was recalled to Moscow while on the way to Habarovsk.

Gen. Lushkov fled from Soviet territory into Manchoukuo on June 13 because of his fear that he had been marked for execution after receiving orders to return to Moscow from the Far East.—Domei.

London can now be shelled from a thousand miles away according to Berlin reports of a new gun developed by German technicians which can send a shell through the stratosphere, using the rocket principle.

It is said to have a 7-inch bore and throws a "stratosphere bomb" weighing 300lb. But you needn't worry. Military engineers are trying in vain to increase the gun's accuracy. At the maximum range the odds are a thousand to one against the rocket shell hitting its target.

DOES BOTTLE BOTHER BABY?

IF SO Mrs. Robert E. Brandon, of Markham, Ontario, has this message for you: "As so often happens to bottle-fed babies, stomach trouble and constipation were so troublesome we despaired of ever raising our first baby. A neighbour recommended Baby's Own Tablets and they proved so satisfactory we have never been without them for over thirteen years, with the result we have five extra sturdy children. So far they have missed all the so-called children's diseases and four of the five were bottle fed."

And Mrs. M. Butchart, of Toronto, says this: "Baby's Own Tablets are excellent for bottle-fed babies as they assist in digesting foods which cause indigestion."

Baby's Own Tablets are equally effective in diarrhoea, simple croup, colic, colds, simple fever and teething troubles, also to expel worms.

If you have pain or discomfort after eating, or wind or that unpleasant "overfull" feeling, Phillips Live Yeast will soon end your troubles. If your digestion has been seriously weakened by neglect, make a practice of taking Phillips Pure Live Yeast regularly, for about three weeks in every month.

IMPARTIAL NOT NEUTRAL

MORALS AND POLITICS

The comment by this journal on the statement issued over the signature of the Archbishop of York and a number of clergy of the Church of England concerning the alleged moral deterioration of British policy has aroused much bitter comment and some support. It is inevitable that this should be the case, but, despite that criticism, there seems to be no really sound reason why this journal should not continue to deplore these utterances on British politics. There was a time when the Church undoubtedly dominated the State—whether for good or ill is a matter of opinion—but that condition no longer exists and the Church is now only part of that organization, and not even a dominant part. Let it be conceded that on the question of the morals involved in the issues raised Dr. Temple is on perfectly sound ground: how valuable a contribution is the statement in question in view of that fact, and some others which are to be adduced? If all the leaders of the Church in their approach to mundane politics were consistent, its value might be inestimable, but unfortunately even the leaders do not see eye to eye on the question of the application of morality in this connection. During May the House of Lords had occasion to debate on the question of Abyssinia in which the Archbishop of Canterbury, Member of the House of Lords, and His Majesty's Right Hon. Privy Council, advocated suggestions that a settlement of the Abyssinian question might be reached by installing Emperor Haile Selassie, in some part of the territory formerly his, as a kind of provincial governor owing allegiance to Italy. The following is taken from his speech:—

> It would be a condition of any such offer that the Emperor would be prepared to forgo his title and undertake to do his utmost to prevent, or, at any rate, restrain, organized fighting under recognized chiefs. That fighting is going on. It is going on continually and with ever-recurrent intensity. It must impose a very severe strain upon the nerves of the Italian troops. The maintenance of the large forces needed to deal with it must be an increasing burden upon the resources of the Italian Government. If it could be made to cease, or even be greatly reduced, then the Italian Government would be set free to consolidate that large part of Abyssinia which would then be in its effective possession.

Is this an example of the same devotion to high ideals in politics as that expressed by the Archbishop of York? Or is it not rather a case of holding the candle to the devil of expediency, a bowing down in the house of Rimmon?

And if it is, and it must be remembered that the Archbishop, in the House of Lords was speaking as a Lord Spiritual, who is to be followed—the Archbishop of York with his stern adherence to the moralities even though the heavens fall, or the Archbishop of Canterbury whose venture into the kingdom of realism seems to err to the other extreme? Is it not apparent that members of the Church must themselves remain confused in the face of such contradictory doctrines. If there could be unanimity of opinion amongst the leaders on the subject their utterances might be of some value as a guide to the apparently somewhat less enlightened, but if there cannot be, surely the apparent reticence of the Bishop of London, a Lord Spiritual and member of the Privy Council, affords an example which might with profit be adopted. The view taken by the journal is emphasized by the remarkable utterance attributed to the Bishop of Waikato, in New Zealand, in his charge to the Diocesan Synod, arguing that the admission of Japanese into New Zealand and North Australia would be a fresh, bloodless and altogether satisfactory means of defence. He is reported as alluding to Japan as a possible and powerful enemy, questioning Great Britain's ability to guard the Dominions, and contending that the matter must be regarded from the Christian and not the political point of view. The passages quoted savour, uncomfortably of the martyr-nation theory that, when a nation is sufficiently devoted to the ideals of peace, to accept in quietness any injustice that may be inflicted upon it, war would be at an end. It is claimed that the impressiveness of such a sacrifice would transform the world. But would it? This journal does not know, and would be more than a little reluctant to put it to the test until the hungry wolf forgoes the submissive surrender of the tender lamb. There probably are people who completely believe that such a doctrine may prove efficacious, but if they do they are gifted with that simple faith, which, admirable as it may prove in the individual, is hardly to be recommended to the mass.

These are no days for the demonstration of ethical genius: they are times when the display of political common sense is imperative, and that political common sense requires that aggression shall be met with resistance, that preparations for possible attack shall be met by adequate arrangements for defence. Is it to be believed that, international morality being what it is, sweet words can be relied upon to turn aside bellicose intentions? The question has but to be put to be answered. It is perfectly possible to agree that moral considerations should come first, but in a world in which it is "each for himself and the Devil take the hindmost" exactly what sort of morality is to be applied? If Great Britain had initiated the arms race, if she had not imperilled her existence by scaling down her armaments as an unavailing example to others to such an extent that her expert advisers expressed the gravest anxiety, there might be some ground for the admonition implied in the statement originally criticised, but it is not to be believed that Great Britain has been moved by any more immoral consideration then the unhappy realization that the day might come when she might find herself defenceless against her enemies. When all nations are actuated by moral considerations and the millenium of peace is here even the leaders of the Church may find some common ground upon which to advise governments as to their moral obligations, and in this connection it may be that countries which live by the sword may perish by that weapon, though this is certain—those countries which have no sword are doomed to extermination first. And one last word. There appears to be the impression in the minds of some writers to the correspondence columns that a man's eminence frees him from criticism. It is a poor doctrine, for, if indeed it applied, constitutional officers of State would be sacrosanct, and one of the freedoms of democracy would be denied. Church dignitaries as well as statesmen when they come into the public arena must be prepared to face criticism—even as editors.

Rights Vindicated

Without a division, the House of Commons has approved of the Prime Minister's motion agreeing with the report of the Committee of Privileges that a breach of privilege was committed when Mr. Duncan Sandys, Member of Parliament, was summoned by a military court to give evidence in an enquiry to discover the source of his information in regard to British anti-aircraft defences which caused such a sensation in the country recently. It will be remembered that Mr. Sandys approached Mr. Leslie Hore-Belisha, War Minister, in regard to this subject of which he had obtained information in connection with his parliamentary duties, and immediately the Official Secrets Act was invoked and, as an officer in the Territorial army, Mr. Sandys was summoned to appear before the military board to explain the source of his information, under penalties which, presumably, the application of this act would demand in case of non-compliance. The House, however, has ruled otherwise and Mr. Sandys will not appear before that tribunal. This decision is a great vindication of the constitutional rights which Parliament enjoys and which are the crowning triumph of centuries of effort and struggle to introduce and defend the principle of democracy in England. Questions of State have often been quoted as a cover for undermining this principle, and in situations of emergency, Parliament has never refused to co-operate provided there has been no encroachment on such a prerogative on which the foundation of English liberty is based. Mr. Neville Chamberlain, the Prime Minister, pointed out that a technical error had been committed by the Military Court, but he expressed his opinion that it was not a deliberate challenge to the authority of the House. Be that as it may, it is difficult to avoid the conclusion that, unintentional as the action may have been—and many people will consider it a rather clumsy and unintelligent way of procedure—the incident could have been avoided by little tact on the part of Mr. Hore-Belisha. After all, any active Member of Parliament with the interests of his country at heart, must come across information of vital importance during his term of office and if he is placed in a position of complete impotency then he is not worthy of the charge of representing the constituency which elects him to the highest body in the land. Mr. Sandys never asked the question regarding the information he had in his possession: he took the proper course of consulting the Cabinet head involved, and immediately the dread process of officialdom descended on his head. Perhaps the British tradition of giving a public airing to every point of issue is to blame in bringing this incident into public prominence, whereas in other countries the veil of secrecy and oblivion can easily be dropped, but it cannot be denied that the House has acquitted itself in a manner worthy of the great traditions which this august institution has established since its institution.

NATURE NOTES

To anyone who has a garden, even a small one, or has time to visit our public parks or to walk in the surrounding country, Shanghai offers an extraordinarily fine laboratory for nature study. To begin with, plants of all kinds grow so well in the rich alluvial soil of the Yangtze Delta region, and there are so many varieties, indigenous and introduced, to be found here, that, for botanical study alone, this area is almost unique. The only thing it lacks is hilly country, and, therefore, plants which thrive on rocky ground; but the student of botany has only to take a twenty-mile trip to the west, where at Zocé the so-called Shanghai Hills rise abruptly from the creek-intersected plain, presenting a vegetation typical of the hilly and mountainous regions of East China. Next, this remarkably rich flora provides sustenance and shelter for an equally abundant fauna. Here one can find representatives of almost every branch of animal life common to the North Temperate Zone. Even some tropical or sub-tropical forms extend as far north as this region, a notable example being the scaled anteater or pangolin, specimens of which have in recent years been captured actually within the city limits of Shanghai. Specimens of the ocean-going loggerhead turtle and the Indian river propoise are from time to time taken in the Whangpoo River, on which Shanghai stands, as far up its course as Minghong and even Tunglimiao. In the local fishmarkets the remarkable Yangtze sword-beaked sturgeon as well as the true sturgeon are often offered for sale, while the equally remarkable giant salamander has been caught in the Soochow Creek. Almost every summer specimens of the Yangtze alligator are taken from the Whangpoo off the Bund here in Shanghai, apparently having been carried by freshets down from the Sitai and Taihu Lakes. Except for such domestic animals as the ox, the waterbuffalo, the pig, the horse, the mule, the donkey, the sheep and the goat, there are no representatives of the herbivores or hoofed animals in the immediate vicinity of Shanghai, but not far away in the hills of Chapoo and Haiee may be found the little muntjac or barking deer, while a few miles up the Shanghai-Nanking railway one comes across the hornless Yangtze river-deer, and in the hills of Chinkiang wid pigs are numerous. Here, too, the wolf is to be found, while tigers have been killed in recent years in the hills around Hangchow. Other mammals found in the Shanghai area are the hedgehog, the racoon dog, the badger, the rasse or spotted civet, the spotted wild cat, the mink, locally known as the golden weasel, the hare, the field mouse, several distinct species of the rat, the house mouse, the harvest mouse, the little striped hamster rat and a whole host of different forms of bats. This area is also rich in birds, including resident species, summer visitors which come here to breed, migrants which pass through on their way to and from their breeding grounds in North China, Manchuria or Siberia, and winter visitors. There are several species of snake to be found in Shanghai gardens and the surrounding country, and at least three specimens of lizard. Toads and numerous species of frogs are abundant, as well as the Chinese terrapin and the soft-shelled river-turtle, the last two in the creeks and canals which intersect this country in every direction. In these, also, innumerable forms of fish, representing many orders and families, occur. Several marine species come right up the river and enter the canals to spawn. There is an infinite variety of lesser aquatic life. Freshwater crustaceans, land crabs, snails, slugs, centipedes, spiders and many other invertebrates abound. But it is, perhaps, in the matter of insect life that the Shanghai area is most prolific. A tour of his garden, almost any day in the year, will yield the entomologist a rich harvest of such creatures for study, while during the summer months he may find representatives of almost the whole gamut of insect life known to science. It would take a long time and many fat volumes to list and describe all the different plants and animals that are to be found in our Shanghai gardens. In these "Nature Notes" I find it possible only to touch on the highlights of a subject of absorbing interest.—A. DE C. S.

In a Cemetery

A gravedigger who was digging a new grave, and had felt a thirst, sent his son round to the nearest bar.

When the boy reached the hotel he rather alarmed the company by shouting—"Ma faither wants a gill o' whiskey an' he says he'll pay ye when he comes up oot o' the grave."

Diplomatic

He had made a record so unusual that his manager decided to find out his secret so he could teach it to all the other salesmen.

His specialty was selling to women. They found him irresistible. And for no good reason. He was an oldish little man. He looked more like Ben Turpin than Clark Gable. No; it wasn't sex appeal. That was sure. What was it?

"Well, I'll tell you how it is, boss," he was saying, when the chief got him into an easy chair. "I just compliment them. That's all. It makes 'em like me."

"You tell them they look pretty?"

"Not exactly."

"You tell them they're smart."

"That's not quite it."

"Well, then what do you tell them?" exploded the exasperated boss.

"Why, when I go to the door, no matter how old the woman is, I politely inquire: 'Madame, is your mother in?' That seems to get them every time."

Man: One of my wife's funny ideas was to suggest we should go and live with her mother.

Constable: I told the defendant he would be reported for a summons, and he said: "Where's all this courtesy I've heard about?"

Magistrate: Was the defendant a man or a boy?

Constable: A boy; he was only 21.

Solicitor at Wood Green: Did you say that the car was travelling in a southerly direction?

Constable: No, sir. I said it was going from north to south.

Solicitor at Wood Green: We are suggesting that it was lemonade you saw being served after time.

Police officer: I asked for three pints of ale and got ale.

Magistrate: And we may take it, officer, you know the difference between ale and lemonade.—Yes, sir.

Wuchang Gets Taste of Japanese Bombing

Eighteen Planes Do Much Damage; Fighting At Kiukiang Causes Foreign Evacuation; British Warship Still Anchored Off City

Hankow, July 12.

TWO hundred persons are reported to have been killed and wounded at Wuchang today when 18 Japanese heavy bombers, escorted by about 50 pursuit 'planes, dropped about 100 bombs in the capital of Hupeh province, opposite Hankow.

Five American institutions—the American Catholic Mission, Boone University, St. Hilda's School, St. Joseph's Hospital and the Christian and Missionary Alliance—were in the line of fire, but escaped with comparatively slight damage.

Appearing above Wuchang at 12.30 p.m., the visitors met with very heavy anti-aircraft fire, which, however, was unable to reach the raiders, who were flying at a height of 4,000 metres. No Chinese machines went up to meet the raiders.

One wing of the Hupeh Provincial Hospital is reported to have been completely demolished by a direct hit, crushing many patients underneath the debris.

Adjoining the hospital was the Christian and Missionary Alliance building, around the compound of which six bombs fell, killing two Chinese in the courtyard and shattering every window in the building.

Two bombs landed near St. Hilda's School: one blowing away part of the compound wall and the other smashing the gatehouse. Two hundred and fifty refugees were in the compound at the time, but beyond receiving the fright of their lives everyone escaped unscathed.

Four bombs landed in the vicinity of Boone University and also St. Joseph's Hospital, while several small bombs are reported to have fallen into the playground near Snake Hill which bisects Wuchang, killing and wounding several students.

One girl, after extricating herself from the debris of a house demolished by a bomb, became mentally deranged due to shock. Crying hysterically, she was seen running along the streets.

Many bombs also dropped in the vicinity of East Lake and Lochiashan, where the Wuhan University is located.

When the all-clear was sounded at 1.30 p.m., another squadron of nine Japanese heavy bombers raided the Chinese aerodrome at Ichang, dropping many bombs.

Chinese Reinforced

Hankow, July 12.

Fighting is now reported to be in progress ten miles below Kiukiang, in the vicinity of Lion Hill, where Chinese batteries are exchanging fire with Japanese warships which have returned up river again after being bombed by Chinese 'planes on Sunday.

Chinese reports add that the Chinese troops at Shoe Hill, which guards the entrance to Poyang Lake, continue to check the Japanese advance southward from Hukow.

The arrival of Chinese reinforcements at Kiukiang, comprising crack Cantonese divisions commanded by General Li Han-wen, has eased the situation in the city considerably, according to Chinese reports received here today.

Chinese circles here are confident that any attempt on the part of the Japanese to advance westward along the south bank of the Yangtze River will meet stiff resistance at Kiukiang.

They point out that the situation will not be as it was at Matung and Hukow, which were defended by only a small number of Chinese marines and Szechuen troops.

All British residents, except a small party of missionaries, have now evacuated Kiukiang, according to a reliable foreign report received here today from that port.

In the future, they will sleep aboard the Butterfield & Swire steamer Wenchow, which is anchored three miles up river.

Representives of firms, it is understood, intend to land daily to inspect their properties and also to collect the mails and to attend to general routine matters.

The British river gunboat Cockchafer (625 tons) will remain in her present position, moored in midstream off Kiukiang.—Reuter.

Kiukiang Still Safe

Hankow, July 12.

A telephone message received here late last night from Kiukiang showed that in spite of the stubborn fighting that had gone on all day yesterday Kiukiang had not yet fallen into the hands of the Japanese.

It is, however, feared in military circles here that in the long run the fall of the town cannot be prevented, since support from warships is lacking. At the present moment there are, however, no signs that Kiukiang will be surrendered.

According to the latest reports the Japanese have succeeded in reaching the western shore of Lake Poyang, so that they are now only seven kilometres from Kiukiang and are still advancing in spite of stubborn Chinese resistance. Covered by fire from their warships the Japanese landed troops on the western bank of the channel which connects the Poyang

Canton Raided by Japanese Again

Wongsha Railway Station Badly Damaged; Bombs Fall in Residential District

Canton, July 12.

Once again the ominous roar of aeroplane engines disturbed the populace this morning, heralding the approach of another squadron of Japanese raiders.

The 'planes came over the city at 10.25 o'clock, apparently in large numbers, judging by the roar of their engines.

They could not be seen by anxious watchers below, owing to low-lying clouds hampering the Chinese anti-aircraft defence work.

The raiders left at 11.25 a.m., after causing havoc in the Wongsha area, which suffered the worst raid since the hostilities began.

The casualties, however, are not believed to have been heavy, owing to the evacuation of the area following previous bombings.

About forty bombs fell in the river, wrecking hundreds of junks and sampans lying off the Wongsha Railway Station, which suffered badly in the raid.

The residential area to the south-east of the Sun Yat-sen Memorial Hall was also bombed, between twelve and fifteen missiles falling in this district.

Though flying at a height of 10,000 feet, the accuracy of the Japanese bombing was remarkable, especially as the raiders were hampered with heavy clouds which obscured their vision.

Jail Narrowly Escapes

The provincial jail, near the Government offices, in the north-east section of the city, narrowly escaped destruction when several bombs fell a few feet away and demolished scores of houses.

The Wongsha north station and terminus suffered badly. The terminus sustained several direct hits, badly damaging two or three locomotives and tearing up the tracks. It was feared that the train service would be suspended for some time as a large crane, weighing about 60 tons, was demolished and is now lying across the tracks.

A number of houses around the area were destroyed, but the casualties were very small as the majority of residents had evacuated since May 25.

The air-raid alarm was sounded again at 1.55 this afternoon.—Reuter.

Searching Starts Today By Foreign Forces

It was understood last night that, beginning at 5 o'clock this morning, special military and S.V.C. Russian parties would operate from The Bund to the boundary of the Hungjao area.

These parties, instituted as a measure against the undiminished terrorism from which Shanghai has been suffering during the last several weeks, it was reported, would function from the foot of Avenue Edward VII, along that thoroughfare into Avenue Foch, thence by Avenue Haig and others of the western roads. They will assist the Settlement Police.

It was understood that the British, American and Italian military would all be co-operating in the enterprise.

No Negotiations for Sterling Dollar Rate

Anglo-U.S. Trade Pact Does Not Touch Subject

London, July 12.

Reuter learns from circles in close touch with the United States Government that the remarks made by Mr. Cordell Hull in Washington regarding the projected trade treaty between Great Britain and the United States in no way imply that negotiations are at present proceeding between the two countries, with a view to fixing a new sterling/dollar rate.

Similar information has been received by the Foreign Exchange market, which has learnt from very responsible British quarters that the latter do not know of any such negotiations taking place.—Reuter.

Washington, July 12.

"In my judgement, if we succeed in working out a mutually satisfactory agreement with Great Britain, it will be a more important factor in restoring healthy business conditions than any other," said Mr. Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, in commenting today on the projected trade treaty between Great Britain and America.—Reuter.

French Reply on Action In Paracels

Note Handed to Japanese Foreign Office

Tokyo, July 12.

Calling on Gen. Kazushige Ugaki, the Foreign Minister, at 4.30 o'clock this afternoon, M. Charles Arsene Henry, the French Ambassador, handed a formal note embodying the reply of the French Government to the Japanese representations regarding the situation in the Paracels, coral group south-east of Hainan Island.

In a note-verbale, Mr. Kensuke Horinouchi, vice-minister for Foreign Affairs, on July 4 drew the attention of M. Arsene Henry to the Japanese Government's objections to the recent dispatch of Annamite gendarmes to the islands.—Domei.

French Warships Sent

Tokyo, July 12.

Six French warships have been dispatched from French Indo-China to the Paracels, off Hainan Island, Hongkong press messages based upon Chinese reports said here today.

Two French transports also unloaded large quantities of arms, ammunition and supplies on the various islands of the coral group on Sunday, the dispatches added.—Domei.

Hindrances to Factories Questioned

Commons Debate Acts By Japanese Here

London, July 12.

"On what grounds does the Japanese Government justify the opening of Japanese factories in occupied areas inside and outside the International Settlement, while prohibiting the working of foreign-owned factories on the ground of military necessity?" asked Mr. Adrian Moreing, Conservative member for Preston, in the House of Commons yesterday.

Mr. R. A. Butler, Under-Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, stated in reply that although the Japanese Government had hitherto made no pronouncement on the subject, it was understood that they maintained that control could be exercised over Chinese workmen in Japanese factories.

They were not, however, satisfied in all cases that control sufficient to prevent subversive activities could be exercised over Chinese workmen in foreign factories.

The matter, Mr. Butler said, was still under discussion both in Shanghai and in Tokyo.

Ownership of Railways

Mr. Ian Hannah, National Government member for the Bilston Division of Wolverhampton, drew attention to the fact that the Japanese Government had presented the basic shares in the railways of North and Central China to Japanese charter companies.

The value of these shares, he said, totalled Y.38,000,000.

Mr. Hannah urged that a protest should be made against such action on the part of the Japanese Government, as "such shares have priority over British capital invested in these lines."

Mr. Butler stated in reply that charter companies could not be formed until October, and quoted a Japanese press report that the draft Articles of Association provide that the Japanese Government subscribe Y.175,000,000 and Y.50,000,000, half the total of capitalization of the North China and Central China companies respectively, and from these amounts Y.30,500,000 for the Central China company would be in the form of railway rolling stock.—Reuter.

Swedish Mission Hit By Bombs

Japanese Planes Attack Ishi; Foreigners Safe

Sian, Shensi, July 12.

The Swedish Mission at Ishi, situated in south Shansi in the Yellow River bend about 50 miles north of Tungkwan, was struck by bombs during a Japanese air raid on June 30, according to belated advices reaching Sian today.

The mission premises, hit twice, were pratically demolished. The dining-room and bed-rooms were destroyed together with the effects of the missionaries.

No one, however, was injured, as the mission staff took shelter in a bomb-proof dugout, which was hit by bombs but fortunately did not cave in.

A girls' school run by the mission nearby was not hit.

Several persons in Ishi were killed during the raid, as a number of bombs fell in the city.

The Ishi Mission is occupied by Mr. J. S. Erickson, with his wife and an infant, all Swedes, while the mission belongs to the Swedish Mission in China, which is associated with the China Inland Mission headquarters at 55, Drottninggaten, Stockholm. — Reuter.

Irish Forts Given Over To Eire

Dublin, July 11.

The transfer of Camden and Carliste Forts in Port Cork from the British to the Eire authorities took place officially this evening, in accordance with provisions of the April Anglo-Eire agreement.

Several trucks carrying Irish soldiers arrived in these two fortresses during the afternoon, replacing the English garrisons which received them in a solemn ceremony and then left on board coast cutters. Armed Band of Arabs Ambush British Police Patrol

More Constables Killed and Wounded; Jewish Extremists Retaliate Violently

Jerusalem, July 11.

AN armed band of Arabs ambushed a British mobile police patrol at Daburieh near Nazareth today and killed a Jewish policeman and wounded two British constables as serious clashes between Jews and Arabs continued. Arab terrorists attacked the Jewish settlement at Givatadda in northern Palestine killing two Jewish policemen and one woman. One Jewish youth was killed at Tiberias and another at Alonim near Haifa.

Jewish extremists retaliated by killing an Arab police commandant at Salimbitar when he was in a barber shop at Tukarem.

British authorities were clamping down hard on the extremist groups, arresting suspected Jews.

Meanwhile in a clash at Mount Tabor between terrorists and British troops, three armed men of the outlaw band were killed and several wounded. One British officer and two soldiers were wounded in the skirmish.—United Press.

British Soldiers Wounded

Jerusalem, July 12.

Further details regarding the various incidents which occurred in Palestine in the course of yesterday became known here this morning.

It was announced that at Nablus three British soldiers were wounded by a bomb which was hurled at a military lorry full of soldiers. During a skirmish at Nazareth, a British captain and two other British soldiers were wounded, while a constable of the Jewish auxiliary police and three Arabs were killed.

In Nazareth where a bomb outrage was committed by hitherto unknown perpetrators, the military authorities forbade he inhabitants to leave their houses after seven o'clock in the evening. Similar restrictions are now in force in all large towns except Jaffa and Tel-Aviv.

Police Stoned

Haifa, July 12.

Five bombs were thrown in the course of an hour yesterday in the eastern quarter of the city, wounding several Jewish factory hands, and reducing the city to a state of turmoil.

Busloads of Jews were also attacked with rifle fire, and one man was stabbed to death.

The British battle cruiser Repulse (32,000 tons), played her searchlights over the slopes of Mount Carmel, helping police and marines to track down the gunmen.

Marines from the Repulse charged and dispersed a crowd who were stoning the police.

Warning shots fired into the air by the police had failed to disperse the crowd.

F. V. Tobias, a Cardiff Jew, died in hospital yesterday after being stabbed and stoned by a crowd of Arabs.

Three other Jews were killed, two by a bomb explosion, and a third was stabbed.—Reuter.

Troops on the Way

London, June 12.

In the course of a brief statement on Palestine in the House of Commons yesterday, Mr. Malcolm MacDonald, Secretary of State for the Colonies, reported that the Repulse had relieved the British cruiser Emerald (7,550 tons).

The First Battalion of the Irish Guards, and the First Battalion of the Essex Regiment, Mr. MacDonald continued, were expected to reach Palestine from Egypt yesterday and today respectively, (July 11 and 12).

The Eleventh Hussars, an Armoured Car Regiment, would follow at an early date, Mr. MacDonald declared.

"I am in consultation with the High Commissioners on the question of increasing the strength of the police forces," Mr. MacDonald concluded.—Reuter.

Serious Clash

Jerusalem, July 12.

Reports of a serious clash between British troops and Arab Nationalists near Dabourieh at the foot of the Tabor mountain arrived here yesterday, it being declared that several British soldiers and numerous Arabs were killed and wounded. Due to extensive destruction of the telephone lines in Palestine, confirmation of the reports was impossible last night.

It is believed that the clash bears some connection with an Arab assault on the Jewish colony at Givatada since British troops were sent to their rescue.—Trans-Ocean.

Jerusalem, July 11.

Terrorism is rampant in northern Palestine, continued troubles giving the situation real gravity.

Curfew has been decreed in Nazareth, Acre and Tulkarem. But at the same time, it is learnt that a strong band of brigands raided the Jewish colony of Samha, near Nazareth, and as yet unconfirmed reports claim the whole colony was razed to the ground while no less than 60 of the colonists were massacred.

Several Jewish shops have been set on fire. In Acre, protest strikes against last week's incidents are being continued.—Havas.

Japanese Guilt in Narcotics Imports Discussed in House of Commons

Opium Said Coming from North and South China; Heroin Produced Mainly in the North

London, July 12.

Japan's alleged guilt in importing narcotics into China, and forcing them on to the Chinese people, was the subject of several questions in the House of Commons yesterday.

Mr. R. A. Butler, Under-Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, rejected a suggestion by Mr. Robert Morgan, National Conservative member for the Stourbridge Division of Worcestershire, that reports regarding the amount of narcotics which are at present alleged to be imported from Japan, and forced on the Chinese, should be obtained from British missionaries in outlying parts of China.

Such official action, Mr. Butler declared, would be improper for the British Government to take, and might place these persons in an embarrassing and difficult position.

In a written reply to Mr. Valentine McEntee, Labour member for West Walthamstow, Mr. Butler stated that he could not, on the information at present in his possession, say whether there had been an increase in the sale of dangerous drugs in the International Settlement at Shanghai.

With regard to the sources of these drugs, it was believed from the opium seized during 1937 that consignments came both from North and South China, Mr. Butler went on to say, while the heroin was thought to have come mainly from the north.

Many Arrests in Shanghai

Replying to Mr. John Banfield, Labour member for Wednesbury, Mr. Butler stated that 255 persons were arrested in 1937 by the Police Force of the International Settlement at Shanghai for being concerned in the sale of opium and narcotic drugs.

He said that 144 of these were Chinese, 97 Koreans, 13 Japanese and one Latvian.

Mr. Butler said that he had no information with regard to the number of arrests made by the French Concession Police Force.

Replying to a question by Lieut.-Cmdr. R. T. H. Fletcher, Labour member for the Nuneaton Division of Warwickshire, Mr. Butler declared that he thought that the Foreign Office had called upon the consular authorities for a report on the narcotics situation.

Replying to a written question by Sir Ernest Graham Little, Independent National member for London University, Mr. Butler said that he would certainly consider the suggestion that an official report should be obtained from any British representatives in Manchoukuo regarding the extent to which the traffic in narcotics was at present being stimulated.—Reuter.

U.S. Flier Leaves Moscow

Mr. Howard Hughes Expected to Break Mr. Wiley Post's Record; Bound for Omsk

Moscow, July 12.

MR. Howard Hughes set his big Lockheed monoplane down on the air field here at 11.16 o'clock this morning, 7 hours and 52 minutes after hopping off from Paris on the second leg of his globe-girdling flight. The distance covered from Paris was 1,675 miles.

One hour and seventeen minutes after landing the millionaire aviation enthusiast and his crew of four climbed into the plane and took off for Omsk, 1,437 miles distant.

The fliers stopped here only long enough to eat, rest briefly and have their machine checked by mechanics at the field. At 1.31 this afternoon they left on the third leg of the gruelling speed flight around the top of the world.

Paris, July 12.

Mr. Howard Hughes left for Moscow with his crew of four in his giant Lockheed twin motor monoplane on the second leg of his round the world elight at 1.24 a.m. today.

The millionaire American motion picture producer and aviator hopped off after an overnight stay at Le Bourgeat air field where expert engineers and mechanics rushed repairs on the radio and overhauled the rudder.

Hopes of Mr. Hughes for setting a new round-the-world flight record mounted because of the sensational manner in which he completed the trip from New York to Paris.

He took only 16 hours 38 minutes for the flight, piloting the "New York World's Fair 1939" by himself for the whole distance across the ocean.

Mr. Hughes was extremely happy but appeared fatigued, although after a short rest and some nourishment he showed remarkable energy in supervising the minor repairs which were necessary.

He said he flew blind throughout the night but used the necessary instruments during daylight.

Trouble With Oil Pump

Because he had some trouble with his oil pump he changed his brand of oil here.

He said that he had encountered some bad weather but this disadvantage was offset by favourable winds.

It was largely because of the favourable winds encountered in mid-ocean that he arrived five hours head of schedule, he said.

Three hundred gallons of gasoline remained in the giant tanks of the glittering silver plane despite earlier apprehension that he would have to make a forced landing because of insufficient gasoline supplies.

Earlier, Mr. Hughes said in a commercial radio broadcast that he had used more gasoline than he had expected. He said he was experimenting to ascertain the amount of horsepower which he could use most economically.

Record Broken

He averaged 218 miles an hour for the flight over a distance of some 3,600 miles.

This speed broke the former world mark for a trans-ocean crossing set by Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh eleven years ago by some six hours.

Mr. Hughes loaded his plane with 850 gallons of gasoline when he took off for Moscow.

Because of the great speed, there were few persons present at the air field to greet the intrepid American airmen.

Newsreelsmen and newspapermen formed the largest reception committee and bombarded the Americans with questions while cameramen clicked their machines continuously.

Mr. W. C. Bullitt, American Ambassador to France, was present at the field as were several other American and French officials, and aviators, and members of the French military and naval air force were well represented.

Ahead of Time

The officials were present because of last-minute notices given them that the plane was expected several hours ahead of schedule.

Mr. Edward Richard Stoddart, radioman, showed signs of strain for he kept in touch with weather bureaus and different observation posts and air fields constantly throughout the trip.

Mr. Harry P. Connor, navigator, Lieut. Hiram Thurlow, co-pilot, and Mr. Edwin Lund, engineer, also appeared rather fatigued but were not as wan as either Mr. Hughes or Mr. Stoddart.—United Press.

Paris July 11.

Mr. Hughes earlier planned to wait until dawn. Weather reports from all over Europe, however, advised him that the weather was clearing at present although there were indications of a storm arising over Poland, which might spoil otherwise excellent flying conditions to Russia.

These reports led Mr. Hughes to hop off immediately despite a rest of only eight hours, 34 minutes since landing here.

His route to Moscow lay over Liege, Belgium, then eastward over Cologne. He expected to arrive at the German border and proceed almost due east past Berlin and Warsaw.

Studies Maps

The holder of the trans-continental speed crossing of the United States studied aviation maps for fifteen minutes in the map room of Le Bourget. He checked natural land marks because European airways are compiled in less detail than those in the United States.

Before hopping off, Mr. Hughes made a brief radio broadcast in which he thanked Air France for lending him the necessary parts to make repairs to his tail assembly.

He seemed to fight his plane in taking off but he lifted it smoothly and soon lost view of the air field.

He was expected to arrive in Moscow in 7½ or eight hours.

Reports from New York state that the National Broadcasting Corporation established contact with Mr. Hughes at 2.30 a.m. (British Standard Time). Mr. Hughes replied:—

"Everybody is all right."—Reuter.

Firemen Hack Way Into Building

Fumes Overcome Six During Fire in Whangpoo Road; Coolie Injured by Debris

A large force of firemen from two Settlement stations were early this morning fighting a stubborn fire which had been burning in the China Egg Produce Company godown, Whangpoo Road, since midafternoon yesterday.

It was the third major fire in the godown in about four years, and although there was no cargo in the building this time, noxious fumes were generated to such an extent that about half a dozen firemen were overcome early in the evening. Besides, at least one coolie was injured by debris and had to be treated by the first-aid crew on the scene. The firemen were removed in two ambulances to the Police Hospital.

The first alarm was sounded at 4.45 p.m. yesterday and caused fire engines to turn out from Hongkew Station. Shortly afterwards, when the seriousness of the situation was realized, assistance was asked from Central Station, Honan Road, whence further engines and the rescue van were despatched. Capt. H. G. Reed, Acting Chief Officer, took personal charge.

Members of the Japanese Naval Landing Party, in full kit and with bayonets fixed, quickly attended the scene and were posted at various points while the fire was burning.

Firemen Cut Through Walls

One of the main obstacles which confronted the firemen was the fact that the building was sealed up, box-like, owing to the fact that all the cargo had long ago been removed to godowns south of the Soochow Creek. It therefore became necessary for the firefighters to cut through the fifteen-inch walls and the twelve-inch layer of insulation inside the walls, in order to be able to approach the fire. Two such "man-holes" were made in the wall at the top floor on the Wangpoo Road side and a third was made at the Nanzing Road side. This was a matter of a couple of hours, and not until it was accomplished could the firemen properly tackle their job.

Later in the evening the fight was on full-blast, with hose being used from both Whangpoo Road and Nanzing Road as well as from the roof of the three-storey building.

Ammonia Cut off

A certain apprehension was felt for a while owing to the fact that the building had an ammonia cooking-plant, as was vividly remembered from the previous fires. It was learned, however, that the ammonia had been cut off long before the present fire started and that therefore there was probably no cause for alarm on the score of ammonia fumes. Other fumes generated in the closed-up space, however, caused considerable annoyance to the firemen, who had to use gas masks of the "Proteus" type from the very start.

Large projectors and acetylene torches had to be employed in both Whangpoo Road and Nanzing Road to help the firemen find their way about. The flickering torches lent to the scene an eerie aspect, lighting up fitfully the forms of hurrying firemen and of Japanese sentries standing like statues at the corners with rifles levelled. Japanese Consular Police, from their station near by, also attended the scene.

In the course of the evening thousands of baskets which had been stored in the large godown were removed to the streets for fear that they might catch fire. Another problem which faced the firemen in the building itself was the presence of a large quantity of rice husks, used for insulating purposes. These husks were being unavoidably expanded by the water used against the flames.

At 10 p.m., when a representative of the "North-China Daily News" visited the scene, it was estimated that the firemen would be there for several hours more. Water was then being played on the building from two sides and the roof. Mr. W. Charters, Third Officer of the Fire Brigade, was in charge of operations.

Chief Inspector J. Clissold, of Hongkew Police Station, had men posted at the scene, while an investigation was being made by detectives under Det. Sub-Insp. P. Smith.

Privileges Question In Commons

House Adopts the Prime Minister's Motion That Breach Was Committed

London, July 12.

The House of Commons, without division, yesterday adopted the Prime Minister's motion agreeing with the recent report of the Committee of Privileges that a breach of privilege had been committed when Mr. Duncan Sandys, a member of the House, was summoned by a military Court of Enquiry to give evidence regarding a matter which had arisen in connection with Mr. Sandys' parliamentary duties.

Replying to Mr. C. R. Attlee, Leader of the Opposition, the Speaker, Captain the Rt. Hon Edward Algernon Fitzroy, ruled it out of order to discuss the action of Mr. Leslie Hore-Belisha, Secretary of State for War, in connection with something for which he held no responsibility.

"Flagrant Defiance"

The Speaker went on to say that any action taken by Mr. Hore-Belisha with reference to this incident could be discussed on an appropriate supply vote, or possibly when the report of the Select Committee had been debated.

"A flagrant defiance of the authority of Parliament," was how Mr. Herbert Morrison, Labour member for South Hackney, described the action of the Military Court of Enquiry.

Mr. Winston Churchill, Conservative member for the Epping Division of Essex, expressed astonishment that Mr. Hore-Belisha had not appealed to be allowed to stand between this subordinate military court, and the censure now directed at them.

The Prime Minister said that the report meant that the Military Court had committed a technical offence, but it was not considered that they had deliberately attempted to challenge the authority of the House.

Not Shirking Responsibility

Winding up the debate, Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer, protested against the imputation that Mr. Hore-Belisha was trying to shirk responsibility, pointing out that the debate was confined to the question of an alleged breach of privilege.

He emphasized that Mr. Hore-Belisha would do his part when the report of the Select Committee was discussed.—Reuter.

Workers Face Starvation

More than 1,000 workers, formerly employed by the Hwa Cheng Tobacco Co., may be threatened with starvation, as the Federation of Charitable Organizations, which has advanced a total of $3,000 for the purchase of food for the unemployed workers, may refuse to advance any more money for this purpose, according to reports yesterday.

The management of the Hwa Cheng Tobacco Co. has definitely refused to assume responsibility for the repayment of the amount already advanced by the Federation, according to the reports.

"Drug Traffickers" and "Counterfeiters"

Police Arrest Suspects in Several Raids

While tracing a gang of counterfeiters, Settlement Police found drug traffickers also, according to the prosecution in the case against thirteen persons in the First Special District Court yesterday. The hearing was adjourned.

First arrests were made in a raid on Chung Nan Hotel in Avenue Edward VII, where one Yung Ping-chien, a rice merchant, accused of having used counterfeit Japanese military notes, and seven others were located.

The rice merchant was searched and a cable was found in his possession, revealing the address of an opium den at 33 Siking Road, according to the prosecution. The raiding party soon visited the place and arrested two men and one woman. Some opium-smoking paraphernalia was also seized.

From information obtained from the trio found in Siking Road house, the police further raided 172 Avenue Foch, where sixty ounces of opium were seized. A Chinese couple were arrested.

The address of the rice merchant, according to the prosecution, was supplied by Zung Nyung-lai who is still being held by the Japanese military authorities. Zung was said to have changed $400 Japanese military notes into $200 Chinese currency in March. The military notes turned out to be false. He was arrested at the Whangpoo Wharf recently.

Robber Gang Sent To Prison

Six Arrested by Police Convicted

Sentences ranging from six years and two months to seven years were passed on three armed robbers convicted on charges of robbery and attempted murder. Three others received six months each for harbouring firearms.

The six men were arrested by Settlement Police recently and charged at the First Special District Court. According to the prosecution the first three accused were involved in a robbery in a house in Connaught Road on March 3 and another house in Jessfield Road on June 4. They were also said to have been involved in a shooting affray at the Central Hotel on June 5.

The Police seized three guns and 53 rounds of ammunition which were ordered by the Court to be confiscated.

Advertising Gambling In Western Area

Two Chinese Tea-Boys Fined By District Court

Charged with inciting persons to gamble, two tea-boys were fined $100 or 50 days' imprisonment each by the First Special District Court yesterday.

The men, Ngan Tsu-fah, aged 42, and Chao Pah-dee, aged 38, were arrested last Friday in Great Western Road, where they were found posting bills, advertising gaming houses in the western district outside the Settlement area.

Both the two confessed to the charges.

According to information from Chinese sources, well over 20 gambling dens are functioning in the western district, and battles are often fought between operators of rival dens. These gaming houses are said to be paying taxes to the Pootung regime.

Throughout Shanghai the population suffered from the heat, which was accompanied by a high degree of moisture. The drinking-water containers placed in the Chinese districts for the benefit of the poorer residents, were well patronized.

Wuchang Gets Taste of Japanese Bombing

Lake with the Yangtze from which position they are now advancing further westwards.

Kiukiang Defended

At the same time Japanese warships moved up river and have already started to bombard the fortifications of Kiukiang. Inside the town trenches have been dug, barbed wire entanglements drawn and barricades erected. At all important street crossings sandbags have been piled up and machine-guns placed in position. It is therefore expected that even inside the town itself a furious battle will take place before the final surrender.

The greater part of the population has fled already under cover of darkness, the electricity supply having been interrupted. Nobody is allowed on the streets without a pass from the military authorities.

The wealthy Chinese of Kiukiang have fled to the Lushan mountains. At Kuling a refugee zone has been established under the supervision of foreigners and several tens of thousands of Chinese have already sought refuge there.

Military circles in Hankow declare that the fall of Kiukiang will not affect the situation on the Yangtze, since the main Chinese defence line is west of Kiukiang. It is, however, not revealed where exactly this line is.—Trans-Ocean.

Floods Aid Japanese

Flood waters of the Yangtze, inundating lowlands on the southern bank of the river, between Matowchen, where a boom was constructed by the Chinese, and Hukow, at the mouth of Lake Poyang, are working to the advantage of the Japanese forces, Lieut.-Commander Taro Isobe, naval spokesman, said yesterday at a press conference. The naval officer returned on Monday from a short tour of duty on the Yangtze.

"A hilly strip of land, about a mile wide, forms the southern bank of the Yangtze between Matow and Hulow," he said. "This means that the Japanese lines of communication are protected against attacks from large bodies of Chinese troops by the flood waters to the south."

Chinese troop remnants still holding on to the hills were being mopped up by the Japanese forces, an army spokesman said.

Kuling Crowded with Refugees

Kiukiang Nearly Deserted By Populace

Hankow, July 12.

Kuling, formerly the most famous of the Chinese summer resorts for the wealthy class, now resembles a refugee camp, according to reports received here from Kiukiang, which state that the resort is now crowded with 20,000 war refugees from the Kiukiang area.

Normally Kiukiang has a population of 80,000, but there are now only about 20,000 people left, and all shops, hotels and banks are closed.

Most owners locked their doors before their depature, but many, in their haste to leave the city, forgot to do so, leaving their belongings and furniture lying about in a disorderly state.

One of the busiest Yangtze ports in the past, Kiukiang is at present without a steamer or a junk.

While villages and towns east and also west of Kiukiang have been subjected daily to heavy bombings by Japanese aircraft, Kiukiang itself has so far been spared the horrors of bombing.—Reuter.

Bridges Demolished On Railway

Canton-Hankow Line Hit In Japanese Raid

Japanese naval planes demolished the Yuantan iron bridge along the Canton-Hankow railway in South China on Monday, Japanese naval authorities announced in a communiqué yesterday morning.

The Yingtak station on the same railway and an iron bridge nearby were badly damaged, the communiqué said.

The Sheklung station and an iron bridge on the Canton-Kowloon railway were blown up, the communiqué stated.

Naval planes destroyed Chinese positions at Tienkiachen, about sixty kilometres north-east of Kiukiang, and in the area between Kiukiang and Hukow, the communiqué concluded.

Chinese Wreck Foreign Property

Kiukiang Pontoons Sunk To Prevent Use

Tokyo, July 12.

Moving to prevent the possible utilization by Japanese of buildings and other property in Kiukiang, the Chinese military there today wrecked two pontoons owned by the American Standard Oil Company, Shanghai dispatches credited to foreign sources there said today. A third pontoon, also owned by the same firm, was scuttled and sunk by its owners to prevent it being blown up, the reports added.

The Chinese authorities, the dispatches which gave highly reliable foreign circles as the source of their information, had also threatened to occupy and fortify all properties along the waterfront. These included the office buildings of Butterfield and Swire, Ltd., Jardine, Matheson Ltd., and other foreign firms.

The fate of the Asiatic Petroleum Company and of the Standard Oil Company installations, two to three miles down river from Kiukiang, had not been ascertained, according to the reports.—Domei.

Foreign Help to China Resented

Japanese Party Issues Manifesto; Intention To Check Influence

Tokyo, July 12.

"The only way to bring about peace at this juncture lies in eradicating anti-Japanese influences in China and stopping the fountain head of foreign assistance to Gen. Chiang Kai-shek," declared a manifested issued yesterday by the Tohokai political party.

The manifesto traced peace moves or protests savouring of intervention by foreign Powers to an "ulterior desire to check Japan's influence and nullify her military successes."

Declaring that Japan's history is full of instances where military successes were nullified by diplomatic moves, the manifesto said Japan is entering the "most critical stage" of the hostilities.

It urged the nation to "carry on the crusade in China to a finish."

Copies of the declaration will be submitted to the Premier, Prince Ayamaro Konoye, the Foreign Minister, Gen. Kazushige Ugaki, the War Minister, Lieut.-Gen. Seishiro Itagaki, and the Navy Minister, Admiral Mitsumasa Yonai.

The chairman of the Tohokai party Mr. Seizo Nakano, returned recently from a tour of Europe.—Domei.

Various outstanding problems regarding China, especially the projected inauguration of a China Affairs Bureau of the Government, were discussed by the War Minister, Lieut.-Gen. Seishiro Itagaki, and the Premier, Prince Ayamaro Konoye, at the latter's official residence yesterday.

Views of army leaders on the China situation and administrative policies to cope with prolonged hostilities were understood to have been set forth by the War Minister.

The officials remained in conference two hours.—Domei.

Guerilla Rounded Up In Shantung

Japanese Claim Large Numbers Killed

Hsuchow, July 12.

Large numbers of Chinese guerillas have been killed or scattered in western Shantung during mopping-up drives continued by Japanese troops since the last of June, according to reports reaching here from that sector today.

The hardest fighting in this area took place at Liangshan on the right bank of the Yellow River in southwestern Shantung, where 15 different engagements were fought since the start of the mopping-up drives.

About 1,600 Chinese soldiers were slain in these clashes, it was estimated.—Domei.

Guerillas Beaten Back Round Shanghai

Fighting at Nantung and Kashing Recounted

Japanese garrisons successfully repulsed on Monday attacks by Chinese guerilla bands within a 200-kilometre radius of Shanghai, a Japanese military spokesman announced last night.

A force of approximately 1,500 Chinese was beaten back near Tungtai, 150 kilometres north of Nantung, on the northern bank of the Yangtze, while several hundred Chinese guerillas were badly defeated near Kashing. The latter group fled leaving behind about 100 dead and scores of prisoners, the spokesman claimed.

The Japanese army air force was active on Monday assisting ground operations against Chinese troop concentrations in the Hukow area, according to the spokesman.

clared Mr. Grover Whalen, Chairman of the New York World Fair Board, when questioned by Press correspondents as to his opinions on the record-breaking New York-Paris dash completed by the millionaire sportsman, his two navigators, radio operator and air mechanic.

In general, much enthusiasm is witnessed here as people celebrate the sensationally swift crossing made by the "New York World Fair."

Mr. Whalen kept in constant touch with Hughes and his group of daring airmen, and as soon as he heard they hand landed at Le Bourget, he sent a telegram of warm congratulations.

Should the American aviators continue their globe-girdling flight at the same speed that they accomplished the first leg, Wiley Post's record for a round-the-world dash will be beaten. The latter mark is seven days, 18 hours 40 minutes. Wiley Post's time for the New York-Moscow leg was two days, two hours 10 minutes.—Havas.

Makes Radio Speech

Paris, July 12.

Acquiescing good-naturedly to the requests of the numerous newscameramen on the scene, Howard Hughes spared a few precious minutes to pose for them and to say a few words over a radio hookup.

In his brief speech before the take-off for Moscow, the millionaire sportsman and aviator stressed the fact that his flight to Paris strengthens Franco-American friendship. He also thanked his listeners for the welcome they had given him and his four companions.—Havas.

Full Route Given

New York, July 12.

Mr. Albert Lodwick, personal representative of Mr. Howard Hughes, today predicted the millionaire sportsman and his crew of four would complete their aerial trip around the world in four and a half days on the basis of the speed at which they have traveled so far.

He said the total distance that would be covered would be 14,710 miles.

Mr. Lodwick said that Mr. Hughes tentative plans on departure called for a stop at Novosibirsk beyond Moscow and about one-third of the way across Siberia, at Irkutsk near Lake Baikal and then 3,000 miles to Alaska over the Siberian "Taiga" forests, swamps and barrens below the Arctic circle.

It was understood that the fliers would skirt all areas in which Sino-Japanese hostilities were going on.—United Press.

Szechuenese Object to Joining Sikang

Rich Parts of Province Resent Changes

Chengtu, July 12.

The inhabitants of the rich western Szechuen districts of Ningyuen and Hweilichow, which not long ago were added to Sikang province, held a meeting recently in Chengtu to protest against the change.

They did not wish, they said, to have their prosperous districts linked to "desolate Sikang."

In accordance with the Central Government's policy of adopting conciliatory measures in order to placate provincial government circles, General Liu Wen-hui was made Governor of Sikang. When he expressed discontent at the poverty of his new domain, the districts of Ningyuen and Hweilichow were added.

Despite the fact that General Liu has offered to rename the province "Ningkiang," thus giving that district a place of honour, the two areas are still dissatisfied and prefer to remain part of Szechuen province.—Reuter.

GENERAL Feng Chih-an, former Governor of Hopei Province and now Commander of an Army Corps, who arrived in Hankow on July 7, paid a call on the Chairman of the Military Affairs Commission, General Chiang Kai-shek, on July 9, says a dispatch to the "Life Daily News." General Feng will return to his post within a few days' time.

Chinese Hold Out In Shansi

Conflicting Reports of Fighting; Japanese Say Many Leaving

Hankow, July 12.

Although the Japanese are pouring reinforcements into southern Shansi, a Chinese military communiqué claims that, outside of the occupation of Chiyuan, on the north bank of the Yellow River opposite Loyang, the Japanese have accomplished little.

"Any attempt to clear south Shansi of Chinese troops or to cross the Yellow River," the statement says, "will meet with very great difficulties."

The Japanese, advancing westward from Chiyuan, are said to be at present engaged by Chinese troops east of Fenmenkou.

At the same time Chinese forces are reported to be besieging Chuwu, and to be exchanging artillery fire with the Japanese.

The communiqué adds that part of the Chinese troops in west Shantung, withdrawing towards the south-west across the Lunghai Railway into east Honan, have clashed with Japanese forces in the vicinity of Kweiteh and Taikang.—Reuter.

Chinese Crossing River

Peiping, July 12.

Unable to withstand spirited drives by Japanese troops and bombing by military planes, large numbers of Chinese soldiers in Shansi are retreating across the Yellow River to Shensi and Honan, according to dispatches received here today.

Abandoning positions at Kuwo, Hsinchiang and Chianghsien, four divisions of Chinese began crossing the river at Yingho, Wuwangtu and Fenglingtu.

More than 100 boats were used by the Chinese troops.

Japanese Army planes bombed Chinese troops concentrated at Tungkwan on the Shansi-Shensi-Honan border along the Lunghai Railway. Chinese positions at Yuanku also were bombed.

Yesterday 3,000 Chinese soldiers crossed into Shensi at Fenglingtu, the reports said.—Domei.

The authorities will take a new census before enforcing the system, according to the reports.

July Fourteenth Celebrations

National Day Festivities In French Concession; Programme of Events

On July 14, 149 years ago, the fall of the Bastille in Paris symbolized the dawn of a new freedom for the citizens of "La Belle France," and saw the birth of a new Republic destined to list among the first Powers in the world. To-morrow, French residents in China will celebrate the day with all the customary favour of past years, although, in Shanghai, on account of the hostilities many of the gay illuminations of former years will be missing. The French Consulate-General, at the corner of Quai de France and Rue du Consulat, will, however, be decorated with coloured lights, and there will also be illuminations on Poste Mallet, Poste Joffre and the Municipal Building on Avenue Joffre.

Flags will gaily float from the pennants of all public buildings in the Concession, and on the river, as is customary on all national festivals, shipping in port will add to the nature of the day's festivities by dressing overall.

At 7.15 on Thursday morning the day's celebrations will begin with the flag-raising ceremony at the French Consulate-General, which will be attended by distinguished French Consular naval, military, police and civilian officials, and members of all the Foreign diplomatic and military bodies in Shanghai.

Review of Troops

The scene then will move to Koukaza Park where a review of naval units, soldiers, and police will take place. The reviewing officer will be Commandant Arzur of the Dumont d'Urville, who is French Senior Naval Officer in the port, and the French Ambassador to China, M. Paul Emile Naggiar, also will be a guest of honour. As at the flag-raising ceremony a large gathering of other consular, naval and military officers are to attend.

The revue starts at the intersection of Avenue Dubail and Rue Lafayette, and, participating in the parade will be French colonial troops, a French naval detachment, various units of La Garde Municipale, French Special Police, and members of the Russian Volunteer Unit. After the review the units will parade through the streets to their barracks, and the usual receptions will follow.

M. Naggiar will be "At Home" to members of the French Community and other guests at the French Consulate-General at 11.30 a.m., and, one hour later, there will be an annual reception at the Cercle Francais. This is to be followed by the final official function—the Cercle Sportif Francais reception. At night, there will be the usual dinner and dance at the French Club.

Traffic Arrangements

Only those cars displaying passes which are available at the French Consulate-General will be permitted to park along the streets bordering Koukaza Park, and admission to the reserved stands will be by invitation only.

A summary of the traffic arrangements is printed below:—

With a view to providing for the traffic in the best possible conditions in the vicinity of Koukaza Park, the following arrangements have been made:

1. A parking space reserved for the cars provided with an official pass will be established for the guests, Route Voyron, between Avenue Joffre and Route Vallon.

2. No vehicle will be admitted Route Vallon, beginning from 7 a.m., unless it is provided with an official pass.

3. Vehicles will be allowed to station on both sides of Rue Lafayette according to indications which will be given on the spot by constables of the Traffic Department.

Through the information of the trio, police arrested one Sz Hoen-yuin, a foreman, on July 1. He was charged with having harboured the stolen rickshaws.

Japanese Export Difficulties

Discussed by Minister for Economic Affairs; Decline Explained

Tokyo, July 12.

One of the greatest difficulties with which Japan has to contend at present was discussed yesterday by the Japanese Minister for Economic Affairs, Mr. Seihin Ikeda, at a conference with the economic experts of the Japanese provincial administration.

Mr. Ikeda stated that Japan's exports during the first five months of this year had declined by 35 per cent. by comparison with the amount in the corresponding period of last year. In the five months in question Japan exported goods to an aggregate value of Y.1,068,000,000 or eighteen per cent. less than in the same period last year.

In reality however the decline in foreign exchange proceeds obtained from exports and needed urgently by Japan for financing her imports of raw materials for conducting warfare, was far greater. The Minister of Economic Affairs stated that in estimating the value of exports to countries of the "Yen block"—i.e. the Kwantung territory, Manchoukuo and the parts of North and Central China controlled by the Japanese—the value of Japanese exports in the period named amounted to only Y.583,000,000 or 35 per cent. less than during the corresponding period of last year.

The decline of exports was attributed by Mr. Ikeda firstly to the difficulties of the Japanese export industries in obtaining enough raw materials, secondly to the high prices of Japanese goods, thirdly to the economic depression in the countries to which Japan is accustomed to export and fourthly to anti-Japanese sentiment in foreign countries.—Trans-Ocean.

BY winning eight sets out of fourteen the Shanghai Cricket Club gained the distinction of being the first team to inflict a defeat upon the hitherto unbeaten Japanese Tennis Club yesterday afternoon in a postponed Shanghai Law Tennis League First Division encounter which took place at the Race Course.

Previously, the Japanese had overcome both the strong Columbia Country Club and the Country Club. Against the Cricketers, however, the league leaders failed. Green and Thomas, the second couple, disposed of Matsuo and Yano by 6-3, 6-3, 1-6.

In the match between Jensen and Reed and Uchida and Sakamoto a record was made when the homesters won by 19-17. The second set went in favour of the Japanese by 6-4 while the third and final set could not be played owing to darkness. It was, therefore, postponed.

Full results were:—

Gotch and Stokes lost to Sudo and Oka, 3-6, 6-0, 3-6.
Green and Thomas beat Matsuo and Yano, 6-3, 6-3, 1-6.
Wallace and Aiers lost to Takami and Sakamoto, 7-9, 7-5, 2-6.
Jensen and Reed tied with Uchida and Shimidzu, 19-17, 4-6.
Godkin and Kimber beat Ura and Doi, 6-2, 6-4, 6-2.

Columbians Beat Country Club

The Columbia Country Club entertained the Country Club in another postponed senior engagement which resulted in the Americans winning by 13-2.

In the Second Division the Shanghai Recreation Club have practically assured themselves of the championship by outscoring the Shanghai Cricket Club, 9-6, on their own courts. The Recs lost the first and fifth doubles.

The Waterworks Tennis Club showed fine form to overpower Clube Lusitano by the odd set in fifteen, while acting also as hosts.

Interport with Hongkong

The Hongkong Lawn Bowls Association have extended an invitation to the Shanghai Lawn Bowls Association to send a team of six bowlers to the Colony to participate in an Interport series. It will be remembered that a similar invitation was sent last season but it was not possible to make the necessary arrangements on account of conditions which arose from the local hostilities.

This season the Shanghai Association have accepted and it has been decided that the team will leave Shanghai on October 5.

It is requested that players who are in a position to make the trip, subject to selection, will send in their names to the secretary of their respective clubs as soon as possible. These will then be forwarded to the Interport Selection Committee for their consideration.

Sports Parade

BY HENRY MCLEMORE

Denver, Colo., July 10.

Ray Ainsley of Ojai, California, has become the most beloved man in the United States.

Five million golf duffers recognize him as their Beau Ideal, hailed him as their vindication, their excuse for living.

Ainsley, an unknown, bounded into fame when, playing in the National Open Golf Championship at the Cherry Hills course here, he scored a 19—fifteen strokes over par—on the sixteenth hole.

For almost half an hour he stood in a swift-moving creek that borders the sixteenth green and belaboured his ball with blows. It is recorded that a little girl who witnessed his efforts to knock the ball from the creek, turned to her mother when Ainsley finally got it out and said:

"Mummy, it must be dead now, because the man has quit hitting at it."

Hagen Forgotten

When he finally finished—with a sparkling 96—Ainsley was besieged on the clubhouse lawn. Hagen was forgotten. So was Jones. So was an assorted group of state governors and so was Henry Picard, whose second consecutive seventy had given him the halfway lead. The autograph hunters and the candid camera filberts swarmed about him. It was obvious that the autograph hounds figured that the signature of any man who took a 19 on one hole in the Open would some day be worth more than the signature of Button Gwinnett or any other signers of the Declaration of Independence, and that the picture of a man who had perpetrated such a deed would outlive Gainsborough's Blue Boy.

Ainsley's effort at the sixteenth will go down in sports history with the famed "long count" of the second Dempsey-Tunney fight at Chicago. Just as Dave Barry became confused after Jack's knockdown of Gene, so did the official scorer become lost in a maze of figures as Ainsley swatted at the ball. After he had reached the count of fifteen, the scorer turned to Ainsley's partner, Bud McKinney of Nebraska, and called:

"Pick up the count. I'm through."

Speckled Trout

McKinney counted as high as he could, but not having majored in mathematics he quit after Ainsley's eighteenth blow lifted a speckled trout high into the air. A spectator suggested that Ainsley play the trout and not his ball, but as there is no U.S.G.A. rule to cover such an emergency, the Californian took another notch in the pants of his diving bell and continued trying to hit the ball.

He was a sad sight at this point. He was covered from head to foot with sand, and his clothes were soaking wet. Each time Ainsley would miss the ball the current would sweep it farther down stream, and he would have to run along behind it, trying to get in a decisive blow.—United Press.

Schmeling Hangs on the Ropes

Barely one minute after the fight began this picture was taken showing Max Schmeling battered and bewildered, his knees buckling and his arm and chin supporting his body on the ropes while Joe Louis, the heavyweight champion, pounds mercilessly on.

Third Test Match Abandoned

Manchester, July 12.

With more rain and, in addition, bad light, the third Test match between England and Australia was abandoned today.

A brief inspection this morning showed that play was impossible. The light was also poor. Work people in factories outside the Old Trafford had to work by electric light today. Manchester folk can hardly recall a worse week in summer time.—Reuter.

Hungjao Golf Club Tournament

Hong Foursomes Won by Cleland and Glass of "L. B. & M."

The Manufacturess Life finished the first eighteen, one hole to the good. Completing the first nine of the second eighteen in 36, 'L. Talented Visitors at Dalo Pool

More than six hundreds visitors at the newly constructed Dalo Swimming Pool on Bubbling Well Road were given a surpsise yesterday afternoon when two distinguished American swimmers in the persons of Misses Claudia Eckert and Eileen Scanlon became guests there.

Miss Eckert is a member of the Shawnee Country Club, Chicago, and holds the U.S. national fancy diving as well as the 100 metres free style championships. Her companion, Miss Scanlon, is a swimming teacher in Mondelein College of the same city. These two stars spent nearly two full hours in Dalo and gave a number of exhibitions, mostly fancy diving.

The pair arrived from Japan at noon yesterday on board the N.Y.K. Vessel Hakozaki Maru, and sailed early this morning for Hongkong and the Strait Settlement on a world tour.

Dalo was opened last Sunday to the general public. Despite a drizzle in the morning, a crowd of more than 1,000 were on hand to see the inauguration which took place shortly before noon.

Porpoises Sink Bowside At Water Polo

A.S.F. Defeat Walrusses In Exciting Game

The Foreign Y.M.C.A. Porpoises, favourites to win this year's water polo league title defeated the Rowing Club Bowside team by seven goals to one after an interesting and closely contested match played at the Association pool last night, the Oarsmen giving the home team a hard fight and holding the score tied at 1-1 at the interval, but failing to maintain the pace set by their faster and fitter opponents in the second half.

At the Association Sportif Francais pool, the French team defeated the Foreign Y.M.C.A. Walrusses by foul goals to three after an exciting encounter the score being tied at 3-3 up to within a minute of full time and a last minute goal by Fingereth secured the verdict for the home team. The Y.M.C.A. junior side includes a number of young players who have not as yet struck their stride but who will very shortly provide strong opposition to even their senior side.

French Victory

At the Association Sportif Francais pool, the Y.M.C.A. defended the deep end in the first half and here the visitors were able to score first, Vinokoroff going through to score after five minutes of scrappy play. The A.S.F. replied with an equalizer from Fingereth, and just before the half ended. Boissezon scored their next point to give them a 2-1 lead at the interval.

In the second half, the A. S. F. increased their leal to 3-1 through Fingereth's accurate shooting, but Vinokoroff reduced the deficit with a long shot that beat Raymond, and Gubanoff equalised to bring the score to 3-3. Play thereafter was exciting and just before the match was completed. Fingerth scored the wining goal.

Fast Forwards

The Rowing Club Bowside team is the junior side from the Oarsmen's pool, and that they were able to extend the powerful "Y" senior side in their first encounter is to their credit. The match was not without thrills, the "Y" providing three very fast forwards in Logan, Gavriloff and Oliveira, and these were able to demonstrate their speed in the second half when they swam away from their opposite numbers and thereby ganied their scoring points. For the winners, Gavriloff was the most prominent forward.

For the losers, Godkin in goal played a fine game and especially in the first half saved a number of difficult shots. Pressler was the best of the forwards and Hawkins is a newcomer in the defence who will improve rapidly.

The teams were:

Porpoises:—Vernick, J. Dudley, D. McAllister, Starkovsky, A. Gavriloff, A. Legan, L. Oliveira.
Bowside:—S. Godkin, H. A. Calder, E. G. Hawkins, H. G. Fabian, W. K. Corneck, C. Hodgman, A. Pressler.
Referee: D. H. Cooke.

Pirates Conquer Chicago

Terrific Batting Spree In Last Inning Brings Winning Runs

New York, July 11.

The Pittsburgh Pirates knocked out three runs in the ninth inning to trim the Chicago Cubs, 5-3, and creep up on the New York Giants, National league leaders, today. The Terrymen were idle as rain prevented them from clashing with the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Sending Roy Henshaw to the showers in an eighth-inning barrage, the Cincinnati Reds trounced the St. Louis Cardinals, 9-5, in the only other tussle of the day.

Held to even terms by the Bruins, the Bucs were forced to put on a terrific spurt in the last frame and the rally proved successful enough to bring in three runs and victory.

Joe Rizzo led the attack, lashing out two doubles.

Bill Myers and Lewis Riggs connected for home runs and each drove in two men to help the Redlegs wallop the Bruins, 9-5. It was in the eighth canto that the Rhinelanders broke loose and chased Henshaw off the mound. Linus Frey homered for the losers and also helped push two men across the plate.

Rowing Club Swimming Gala Tonight

Water-polo Match, Many Novel Events

A large crowd is expected to attend the mid-week gala to be held at the Rowing Club this evening, starting at 9 o'clock. Last week spectators were treated to some fine swimming, the special attraction being the appearance by invitation of many of the Foreign "Y" stars, including Toby Gavriloff, Archie Logan and L. Oliveira. All three are Interport men, and form the strongest forward combination in the Water-polo League, besides being the best individuals in the city. Club records were smashed on three occasions, while a representative side from the Foreign "Y" defeated a strong Club Seven by 8-1 in a friendly water-polo match in which some fine handling and passing movements were displayed by the well-trained visitors.

This evening's programme will include several novel events, including a blindfold race for Ladies and a pillow-fight for Men. The main event however will be the League fixture between the Strokeside Seven, last year's joint-Champions, and the Bowside combination. The two sides represent the senior and junior teams of the Rowing Club. Bruce Lamken, powerful pivot-man of last year's senior side, is missing, and to fill the breach L. D. M. Beattie has been moved up from the back division. He should have no difficulty in upholding his predecessor's standard of play.

The inclusion of E. Smith, who has just returned from Hongkong, to combine with his brother Cyril at back will further strengthen the side, and most important of all is the news that both C. N. Brown and J. B. Brown are returning to the pool.

Enviable Reputations

The brothers have enviable reputations in local and Tientsin aquatic circles, and are responsible for the training of the Club's two teams this year. Doubtless they will support E. J. Muir in the attack.

The Club's junior combination, Bowside, will profit by the inclusion of H. G. Fabian, non-playing captain of the Club, his brother Louis and J. G. W. Lewis. All three have a good knowledge of the game, and should be able to send away the younger and fast members with the right kind of pass. A. Pressler, C. H. Hodgman and H. Farmer, a mid-distance man, will form the spear-head of an attack which is becoming more of a menace at every practice, and these men know that they will not lack support from behind when they move into the goal mouth.

Destremau Wins in Hamburg Tennis

Hamburg, July 11.

Bernard Destremau, French tennis ace, defeated C. Spychalla of Poland in the International Tennis Championship men's singles tournament contested here today. He won by scores of 1-6, 6-2, 8-6, 2-6, 6-2 after a gruelling struggle.

In another singles clash, the Frenchman Lesueur succumbed to Szigeti of Hungary by 10-8, 4-6, 9-7, 8-6.—Havas.

U.S. Athletes to Vote on Tokyo Olympics

New York, July 11.

The American Olympic Committee, faced with demands for a boycott of the 1940 olympiad at Tokyo, is conducting a poll of the nation's athletes to determine whether they favour American participation.

The poll also seeks to find out how many athletes are planning to enter the trials, whether they will be able to make the trip in the event they make the team and the attitude of students who would be compelled to miss more than a month of the autumn school semester because of the early date of the games in Tokyo.—United Press.

Army Asks Control Of Banks

Restrictions in North China Wanted; Japanese Finance Regulations

Peking, July 12.

In order to control Japanese financial institutions in North China, Japanese army authorities are maintaining that Japanese banks, except the Yokohama Specie Bank and Bank of Chosen, should not be allowed to start business in North China, official quarters here disclosed today.

Army authorities were said to hold that foreign exchange business in North China should be conducted by the Yokohama Specie Bank and exchange transactions with Japan by the Bank of Chosen.

Authorities of the Bank of Chosen and the Yokohama Specie Bank are making arrangements between them regarding desposit interest rates, which will be regulated in Peiping and Tientsin on the same basis as in Japan and gradually extended to other branches in North China.

Similar arrangements will be made between both banks regarding remittance fees.

The Bank of Chosen is going a step further in unifying Japanese financial institutions by taking over the business of the Tientsin Bank and Tsinan Bank, both Japanese institutions, it was revealed.

The Bank of Chosen and the Yokohama Specie Bank have been adopting a licence system on loans exceeding sums designated under a business arrangement with the Federal Reserve Bank of China.—Domei.

New Japanese Shipping Firm for China

Government Asked for Cash To Expand Activities

Tokyo, July 12.

Plans for organizing a new shipping company to operate in China waters were completed yesterday by officials of the Ministry of Communications, the press was informed today.

Principles to guide the operation of the company were discussed by Mr. Ryutaro Nagai, Minister of Communications, and Mr. Jiro Isetani, Director of the Shipping Bureau of the Ministry, last night.

They emphasized the importance of assisting in the economic development of China and protecting Japan's shipping rights there, at the same time respecting the rights and interests of third Powers.

Earlier Mr. Nagai conferred with the Premier, Prince Ayamaro Konoye, on China shipping policies. The Minister of Communications was reported to have requested that next year's budget provide adequate funds for expanding shipping businesses in China.—Domei.

Japan Restricts Cotton Textiles

Half of the cotton stocks will be purchased for agricultural, fishing and mining regions, where consumption is permitted by the new regulations.

The cotton stocks include 286,000 bales of cotton yarn, 451,735,000 yards of cotton textiles and 2,000 tons of cotton hosiery.—Domei.

Among those who had then contributed were General and Madame Chiang Kai-shek, Government officials, Communist leaders, refugees, beggars, children and soldiers.

Details of Spain Withdrawal Revealed in White Paper

Volunteers to be Evacuated at Rate of 2,000 a Day; Period of Operation Said Five and a Half Months

London, July 12.

FULL details of the scheme of operation of the British plan for the withdrawal of foreign volunteers from Spain are contained in a Blue Book and a White Paper published here yesterday. The Blue Book specifies the ports to which they will be withdrawn as London, Hamburg, Genoa, Marseilles, and Lisbon, and the volunteers, it is stated, must be taken to the evacuation areas at a rate of at least 2,000 per day.

Those brought to London will be nationals who are being repatriated to the United Kingdom, Eire, Belgium, Denmark, and other Northern European countries.

At a date when the withdrawal of foreigners reaches "substantial" proportions, belligerent rights will be granted to both parties.

Apart from the changes in the ports of evacuation by the inclusion of London and Lisbon, and the exclusion of Southampton, the blue book follows the lines generally forecast last week.

London receives volunteers, including prisoners of war, due for repatriation to Esthonia, Finland, Latvia, Lithuania, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, Norway, Poland and Sweden.

Distribution Plans

Hamburg receives those foreigners embarked at Cadiz and Malaga, but repatriated at the above countries.

Lisbon receives only the volunteers and prisoners due to return to Portugal from both sides.

Marseilles receives those destined for Albania, Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Greece, Hungary, Roumania, Turkey, the Soviet, and Yugoslavia, embarking at Palmos or Cartagena, as well as prisoners of war embarking at Cadiz or Malaga for the above destinations.

Genoa receives all volunteers and prisoners of war due to return to Italy, and, in addition, all foreigners embarked at Cadiz and Malaga, and all prisoners of war embarked at Palamos and Cartagena destined for the same countries as those received in Marseilles.

The plan outlines a time-table for the withdrawal, whereby the first volunteers will be drafted to the evacuation areas 46 days after the final adoption of the plan, and the last volunteers, excluding the sick and wounded, and prisoners of war, (who are given an additional 35 days), will leave Spain 100 days after the adoption of the plan.

Concluded on 164th Day

The entire withdrawal operation, including the disbandment of Commissions, etc., will be concluded by the 164th day.

The total period which is contemplated for the operation of the plan is five and a half months after the date of its acceptance by both sides.

Owing to the plan's complexity, it is expected that Burgos and Barcelona will take at least one month to reply.

A White Paper containing the text of a proposed resolution reaffirming and extending the Non-Intervention Agreement, and providing for the withdrawal of foreign volunteers from Spain, for the grant, in certain circumstances, of belligerent rights to the two parties in Spain, and for the observation of the Spanish frontiers by land and by sea, was published yesterday evening.

An annex attached to the resolution, which comprises seven parts and sets out in full detail the measures to be taken to give effect to the resolution, is a lengthy document.

Altogether, the White Paper contains eighty closely printed pages.

Both the resolution and the annex are in the hands of both of the Spanish parties.

The resolution notes that the Governments which are parties to the Non-Intervention Agreement deem it expedient to reaffirm the obligations entered into under the Agreement, including those in regard to the export of arms and war material to Spain, and to the departure from and transit through their respective countries of foreign volunteers for Spain.

Further Declarations

It also notes that these Governments deem it expedient to extend these obligations to cover persons whose activities would be in any way susceptible of prolonging or embittering the present conflict.

The resolution further declares that the Governments deem it expedient to ensure the application of all nine points of the British Plan of July 14, 1937, dealing with the withdrawal of foreign volunteers, the granting of belligerent rights, and the problem of control, with such additional measures as may be necessary to render the control fully effective.

Accordingly, proceeds the resolution, the Committee agree on behalf of the Governments represented that effect to these objects shall be secured in the manner indicated in the annex.

Special interest attaches to the details of the proposed plan for the withdrawal from Spain of those engaged directly or indirectly in the present conflict, which are set out fully, as in the Blue Book.

Some 56 paragraphs of the report are devoted to the method and time-table, in accordance with which it is proposed that withdrawals shall be carried out.

Duties to be discharged with Spain in this connection will be entrusted to two Commissions, attached respectively to the Headquarters of the two Spanish parties, and in the annex the main outlines of their duties are set out.

General instructions prepared by the International Board for Non-Intervention will be issued to members of each Commission in London before they proceed to their posts in Spain.—Reuter.

Jews Disappointed In Evian Talks

Sterility of Conference Emphasized; Attacks On British Attitude

Jerusalem, July 12.

Bitter disappointment is felt in Jewish circles interested in increasing Jewish immigration into Palestine at the sterility of the International Conference at Evian, reports the Jewish press here, which states that it had been confidently hoped that the conference would lead to a clarification about the prospects and conditions of future immigration.

The Zionist press takes the view that dissention and lack of discipline among the Jewish population is one reason why the conference has so far been so unsuccessful in arriving at an appreciation of the Jewish point of view. The Zionist press admits that despite all efforts made, the management of the Zionist movement has so far been unable to influence the Jewish revisionists in any way and to some extent has been equally unsuccessful with other Jewish groups.

Trouble Foreseen

Should the developments continue as heretofore, Zionist newspapers declare, a general catastrophe will be unavoidable.

The Jewish press regrets particularly that in Evian up till now the question of immigration into Palestine has hardly been mentioned and adds that Zionist hopes and demands regarding the possibilities of immigration into Palestine have hitherto been totally disregarded.—Trans-Ocean.

England Attacked

Evian, July 12.

Extraordinarily violent attacks against England and against the British delegation to the International Conference on refugee questions were made by leading members of the Jewish agency for Palestine at a reception of the press yesterday.

The speakers expressed their dissatisfaction at the fact that the chief British delegate, the Earl of Winterton, had not considered it necessary to make any reference before the Conference of the merits of Jewish activity in Palestine.

Dr. Nahum Goldmann, representative of the Jewish agency at the League of Nations, pointed out in this connection that the Jewish people had great potential possibilities of development in Palestine and must be allowed to find their real home there. Dr. Goldmann added that it was regrettable that England had overlooked the Jewish achievements in her protectorate and that the Conference at Evian had expressed no word of acknowledgment.

Better Than Sympathy

The leader of propaganda of the Jewish agency, Miss Golda Myersin, also attacked England and emphasized the building up of the Jewish nation which England ignored as if it were not taking place. Miss Myersin declared that it would be better to provide the Jewish people with a place where they could make a home than to offer them sympathy. Sentimental help of the Anglo-Saxons was nothing against the fact that the world Jewry in Palestine had found a real place for home.

The leader of the colonial department of the Jewish agency, Dr. Ruppin, finally declared that Palestine would absorb 10,000 Jews yearly. He complained about the unceasing attacks of the Arabs against the peaceful Jewish population and asserted that another 500,000 Jews could be settled on land in Palestine. If other occupations were counted, he said, it ought to be possible to settle about 2,000,000 more Jews there. Palestine alone would naturally not suffice for the settlement of all Jews and in that sense the Conference of Evian had at least meaning.

Dr. Ruppin urged that it must be expected that the time would come when the 3,250,000 Jews in Poland would have to emigrate because the Polish people were forcing the Jews out of trade, industry and the liberal professions, in fact everything that the Jews had hitherto held. Poland was too small to afford room for the Jews in agriculture. It would also be necessary to reckon with heavy emigration of Jews from Rumania and Hungary. Dr. Ruppin concluded.—Trans-Ocean.

Four Detained After Robbery in S.R.C.

Servants and Friend Held Pending Investigation

Four Chinese were being detained yesterday by the Settlement Police on suspicion of having been implicated in Sunday night's robbery at the Shanghai International Bridge Club headquarters, Shanghai Race Club, where a strong-box holding about $500 and various documents was taken.

The four are three of the servants employed in the Race Club, and a friend of one of these. They were taken before the First Special District Court yesterday morning and remanded. Detectives attached to the Chengtu Road Station are continuing their investigation.

Hangchow Factories Cannot Reopen

Many obstacles still prevent many factories from resuming operations immediately in Hangchow. The principal obstacle is the inability of the Hangchow power station to supply sufficient electricity to the various mills.

The lack of transportation facilities makes it difficult to send to the lakeside city coal which is indispensable to industries. The only plant which will reopen very soon in Hangchow is the Kwang Hwa Match Factory, according to reports.

New York Stocks

Monday's Closing Quotations

New York, July 11.

Easier conditions prevailed on Wall Street today, with stock prices mostly finishing from fractions to about three points down. There was not much in the news, and traders construed today's recession as a technical reaction. The decline, however, met resistance from steels and aircrafts, the former due to the unexpected good rise in steel mill operations and the latter, owing to a good inquiry. The turnover amounted to 1,090,000 shares.

Dow-Jones Summary

By Courtesy of Swan, Culbertson & Fritz

Favourable factors on the Stock Exchange today included: the American Iron and Steel Institute's estimate of Steel operations at 32.3 per cent., being 9.9 per cent. higher; experts saying that the market is nicely absorbing realizing; the upward revision of automobile schedules; and, the strength of livestock markets. Unfavourable factors were: the uncertainty prevailing over the "monopoly probe," and expectations of a current market reaction.

By courtesy S. E. Levy and Company

An increase in public buying is noted. European interests were buyers on Wednesday and Thursday. One international house which started the advance turned a seller. An internationally connected wire-house sold on Friday. One investment trust, which was a recent buyer, sold especially Montgomery Ward and United States Steel. Short interest is small.

There has been no significant buying of consumer goods.

Business activity and the spread of stock prices are the greatest recorded since 1932. A good Fall revival has already been discounted. Present market levels warrant scepticism.

Tin Restriction Tonnage

London, July 12.

The International Tin Committee has published the following export figures in connection with the plan for restriction of the tin production in the countries concerned: Netherlands East Indies 1,629 tons, Nigeria 993 tons, Bolivia 2,086 tons, Malay States 3,781 tons, Siam 1,130 tons, Belgian Congo 570 tons, French Indochina 130 tons. The figures are for May 1938.—Trans-Ocean.

Reichsmark Quotations

Berlin, July 11.

The Reichsmark was quoted today at New York 40.22, Paris 1453, Amsterdam 72.925, London 12.275.

Paris quoted sterling at 178.40 to 178.50 and the U.S. dollar at 36,15 to 36.16.—Trans-Ocean.

Moutrie & Co. Ltd. Annual Meeting

Despite Hostilities Net Profit of $76,072 Made; Business Reorganized

The thirty-ninth annual general meeting of Messrs. Moutrie & Co. Ltd., was held on July 11, at the offices of Messrs. Ilbert & Co. Ltd., Secretaries and General Managers. Dr. W. J. Isenman presided, supported by Messrs. K. E. Newman and K. G. Stephenson, directors. Holders of 710 shares were represented at the meeting. The chairman in his speech said:—

The Profit and Loss Account shows a nett profit of $76,072.00 which I feel confident you will consider quite satisfactory, considering the extremely difficult period through which we have just passed.

After adding $8,912.34 brought forward from last years account the balance available for disposal amounts to $84,984.34 which your Board recommends be dealt with as follows:—

Place to Stock Reserve	$22,000.00
Place to Building Reserve	20,000.00
Place to Investments Reserve	10,000.00
Carry forward to New Account	32,984.34
	$84,984.34

It is with regret that we are unable to recommend the payment of any dividend, but this is due to the fact that, apart from the amount invested in local shares and debentures, all our liquid funds are being utilized in financing the increase in our turnover which has taken place during the past few years.

Stocks are correspondingly higher at $440,661.50 a contributory cause being the fall in the exchange value of our local dollar.

Sundry Debtors, at $170,418.53, show an increase over the proceding year of $9,899.41 but no anxiety is felt on this account and our Bad Debts Reserve is considered ample.

Investments have been reduced during the year by $29,449.20 but unfortunately in the present circumstances further realizations could only be made at a substantial loss.

Hostilities Affect Business

No review of the year's working would be complete without some reference to the unprecedented dislocation of our business in Shanghai due to the recent local hostilities. Our factory at Baikal Road was at a complete standstill for approximately 5 months and operations were only resumed in January this year under extremely difficult circumstances. Our Factory Manager, Mr. Hepburn, is deserving of the highest praise for the way in which he and his staff carried on in the fact of many obstacles. We may congratulate ourselves that the physical damage suffered by our factory was negligible in spite of the fact that adjacent buildings were completely demolished by shell fire. The output of Pianos for the 7 months during which the Factory was operating was 353 against 466 for the full 12 months of the preceding year.

Reorganization

During the year under review, Mr. H. W. P. McMeekin, whose retirement from the Board we note with regret, visited our Malayan Branches and after a lengthy investigation made a number of important recommendations which have since been put into effect and which, I fell sure, will result in the more efficient handling of our interests in that part of the world. Similarly, in Shanghai, a thorough reorganization has been carried out and Messrs. Ilbert & Co., Ltd., have been appointed Secretaries and General Managers, thus relieving Mr. Burch of the onerous clerical work which has interfered with his more important duties of selling our products and looking after the interests of customers generally. Mr. Burch has now taken charge of our organization in Hongkong and Mr. Davies, whom we have with us today, has been placed in charge of our Nanking Road store. These changes are the result of long and careful consideration by your directors and I am confident that they constitute a great improvement in the internal working of your business. The immediate results are a material reduction in overhead expenses, and if any of you have visited our showroom on Nanking Road during the last few days you will have noticed that it is considerably larger, and that there is a far finer display of instruments than ever before. This has been made possible, at no extra expense, by the removal to the Secretaries office of all the clerical staff and office furniture which previously occupied so large a proportion of our expensive showroom space.

As regards the future, I believe I am justified in being optimistic. The export demand for Moutrie Pianos is steadily increasing and we have a staff of men who are all keen on their jobs and in whom I have every confidence. If the results for the current year turn out to be disappointing it will be due to factors which are doubtless only temporary. I refer to the recent slump in Malayan commodities and to the fact that China is passing through a phase when satisfactory business, especially in a luxury trade such as ours, can hardly be expected.

There being no questions, the following resolutions were put to the meeting and passed unanimously:

That the report and statement of accounts for the year ended March 31, 1938, as presented, be accepted and passed. Proposed by Dr. W. J. Isenman and seconded by Mr. K. E. Newman.

That Mr. K. G. Stephenson be re-elected a director of the company. Proposed by Mr. K. E. Newman and seconded by Dr. W. J. Isenman.

That Messrs. Lowe, Bingham & Matthews be re-elected auditors to the company for the ensuing year. Proposed by Mr. K. G. Stephenson and seconded by Mr. A. C. Remedios.

Paris Bourse

Paris, July 11.

A heavy and dull tone witnessed at the opening call on the Paris Bourse this morning. Trading was practically dead, with light sales bringing most prices down.

Gold mines were firm, while the rest of the issues declined more or less sharply.—Havas.

Sugar Council Reductions

London, July 11.

The Sugar Council may authorize sweeping reductions for the 1938-39 crop year export quotas to erase the world surplus.—United Press.

U.S. Commodities

Monday's Closing Quotations

New York, July 11.

Cotton prices declined on bearish foreign cables, favourable weather, the weakness of stocks and most commodities and foreign selling. Later, the market recovered partially on trade and local buying but again declined on renewed liquidation to close barely steady, with quotations ranging from 23 to 24 points down from the previous final levels.

Irregular conditions prevailed in the rubber market earlier in the day, but later prices were subjected to a wave of selling pressure and commission house liquidation. Factory interests, however, bought on the scale-down. At the last call-over, losses from 27 to 36 points were recorded.

Chicago wheat prices ruled firm today on the Government report, being construed as bullish, while mills bought and shorts covered. At the final bell, quotations ranged from ⅜ to ⅝ of a cent up from Saturday's levels.

Wounded Sailor Joins Japan's Air Force

Crippled by Bullet, Youth Wants to Go on Fighting

Tokyo, July 12.

Deprived of his "sea legs" by a bullet wound, a Japanese bluejacket, Taro Honda, 22, refused to let the injury end his naval career and is going back for a second period—this time as a flier, naval authorities revealed today.

He was wounded in the left leg while taking part in the landing operations in the Shanghai area. As soon as he left the naval hospital at Yokosuka he put in his request to be sent back to the front. He will start his new period of service next month as a flight seaman attached to the Tsuchiura air unit.—Domei.

Tokyo Firm Increasing Pig Iron Production

Synthetic Liquid Fuel to Be Manufactured

Tokyo, July 12.

A three-year plan to bolster production of pig iron was put into operation today by the Y.100,000,000 Showa Steel Manufacturing Company.

Annual production of pig iron will be increased to 3,600,000 tons by 1941, a gain of 1,600,000 tons over the present output.

Gas generated in making pig iron and thus far used for manufacturing by-products such as ammonium sulphate, benzol and creosote, hereafter will be used in producing synthetic liquid fuel, annual production of which is expected to reach 200,000 tons.—Domei.
